Freedom Train to make week's stop in Pomona

The American Freedom Train, a traveling exhibit of historic American artifacts commemorating the country's Bicentennial, has been scheduled to appear in Pomona in December.

Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire announced that the steam-powered, 24-car train has been tentatively scheduled for display at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona from Dec. 20 to 28.

The dates will be confirmed after final arrangements are completed next month with the American Freedom Train Foundation.

Among the many historic articles on display will be Benjamin Franklin's draft of the Articles of Confederation of 1775, a 1776 edition of Thomas Paine's "Common Sense," George Washington's personal copy off the Constitution, the first Bible printed in America, Lincoln's preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, and President Franklin Roosevelt's speech to Congress following the attack on Pearl Harbor.

"The display here of this nation's most treasured documents and artifacts is a major honor for Pomona and neighboring cities which have cooperated on this project," said Lepire.

Lepire gave special credit to Clem Neibel, chairman of the Pomona Centennial-Bicentennial Committee, who has been working on the project for over a year in talking with the foundation, Southern Pacific Transportation Co. and the Los Angeles County Fair Association.

Neibel's efforts were supported by the Bicentennial committees in Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas, Congressman Jim Lloyd and Los Angeles County Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum.

The Pomona appearance will be one of the train's few stops in Southern California on its 21-month, cross-country tour. Now on the East Coast, the Freedom Train has attracted large crowds and is capable of handling some 2,000 visitors per hour on its moving walkways.

Some of the other articles on display will be a moon rock, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s vestment robe and Bible, President Kennedy's handwritten draft of his inaugural speech, motion pictures' Academy Award statuette and TV's Emmy Award, presidential portraits of Washington and Kennedy, college football's Heisman Trophy and tennis' Davis Cup, Samuel Morse telegraph key and Western Union uniform, and 45 original United States patent models, ranging from the reaper to the washing machine.

The train carries 10 specially designed display cars, a press car, dining and parlor facilities for government and business leaders invited to ride the train, and a brass-railed observation car.

The articles, paintings, engravings and sculptures on display were gathered from 28 museums, galleries, universities and private collections in 17 states.

More than 10 million persons are expected to visit the Freedom Train during its nationwide tour. There is a nominal admission charge.

OLD HAT TO HENRY

Globetrotting Henry Kissinger, U.S. secretary of state, lets loose with a yawn during the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's summit session Thursday in Brussels. Listening to all the speeches obviously is "old hat" to Henry, whose travels are becoming legendary.

Oil execs see added burden over proposed smog control rules

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's motorists will have to pay as much as $200 million more each year for gasoline because of proposed state smog-control rules, oil company spokesmen say.

A parade of representatives of huge oil companies also complained Thursday that the suggested state Air Resources Board regulations would cost them hundreds of millions of dollars for new refinery equipment.

After a day-long hearing on what would be the first regulations in the nation limiting the amount of sulfur in unleaded gasoline, the ARB's three members delayed action until more data is available.

The ARB began considering the regulations after a federal study determined that catalytic converters on many new model cars — designed to cut other emissions — can convert gasoline's sulfur into sulfuric acid that spews from auto tailpipes.

That acid could be a health hazard, the government said.

The oil company spokesmen said the regulations would raise the price of gasoline, but they could not agree on how much.

"The California consumer...will bear an extra cost of two cents a gallon for unleaded gasoline, which to all California consumers totals in excess of $150 to $200 million a year by 1985," said Robert S. Cramer, director of environmental affairs for Standard Oil of California.

John Glaser, a Gulf Oil Co. spokesman, estimated the total cost at $129 million a year or 1.3 cents a gallon. Carleton Scott, of Union Oil of California, said the regulations would raise prices 2.3 cents a gallon or $172 million a year in higher prices.

But W.A. Johnson of the Arthur D. Little Inc. consulting firm took issue with the cost estimate, saying the proposed regulation would only increase gasoline prices about one-half cent a gallon or $21 to $42 million a year.

ARB Chairman Tom Quinn rejected arguments that no regulations should be issued for years until completely conclusive information is available.

"Perhaps it is better to err on the side of caution when the public health is involved . . . even if we raise the cost of gasoline needlessly," he said.

California can adopt the sulfur emission regulations that even the federal Environmental Protection Agency has not enacted because the state has permission from the EPA to adopt more stringent auto emission standards.

The waiver of federal rules was based on California's critical smog problems.

Cramer said Standard would have to spend $80 million on new refinery equipment to meet the standards. Glaser said Gulf would have to spend almost $20 million.

The ARB staff estimated the total cost for new refinery equipment would be $500 million.

Jobless rate, recession to get worse?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration said today that unemployment and the recession will be worse this year than it estimated earlier, but should be followed by a stronger economic recovery next year.

In its mid-year budget and economic review, the administration predicted unemployment will average 8.8 per cent, or about 7.8 million workers, for the year. The administration predicted as recently as February that unemployment would average 8.1 per cent this year.

The forecast, if true, means that the jobless rate probably will rise above 9 per cent later this year. The April rate of unemployment was 8.9 per cent.

The report, which will be sent to Congress, also predicted that:

—The nation's economy will decline by 3.6 per cent this year, compared with the administration's original prediction of a 3.3 per cent decline.

—The economy will rebound with strong 6.3 per cent growth next year, better than the 4.8 per cent growth forecast earlier.

—The rate of inflation, as reflected by consumer prices, will increase 9.1 per cent this year over 1974, compared with a February projection for a 10.8 per cent increase.

Some physicians balking, won't go back Monday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Striking doctors in California are at odds with one another over whether they should go back to work while the legislature tries to solve the medical malpractice insurance problem.

Most striking doctors in Northern and Southern California are expected to go back to work Monday as part of an agreement with the California Legislature, medical leaders said Thursday.

But some doctors are not pleased by the settlement and will remain off their jobs.

The agreement says doctors will go back to work after a statewide pool of 400 liability insurance carriers sets up malpractice insurance at lower rates while the legislature works on the problem.

State Insurance Commissioner Dr. Wesley Kinder scheduled a hearing today in San Francisco to determine if there should in fact be an insurance pool as provided in the agreement.

Dr. Russell Jackson, president of the Los Angeles County Society of Anesthesiologists, said he hopes doctors return to work as a "show of good faith."

Jackson said the good-faith return to work is "contingent on the availability of reasonable interim insurance to all physicians and is based on commitments from legislative leaders that the current session of the legislature will reform malpractice laws."

Dr. Marshall Sands, chairman of the Department of Anesthesiology at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital, wrote to striking doctors, "If you haven't heard as of yet, you have won the first round of the fight....This means we can now go back to work and take care of our patients."

But some doctors are holding out.

Dr. Joseph Boyle, speaker of the House of Delegates of the California Medical Association, said, "There will be doctors all over Los Angeles and Southern California who will find this not completely satisfactory and decide to selectively provide service."

Solidarity pledged by NATO chiefs

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — President Ford and other leaders of the North Atlantic alliance warned today that the Soviet bloc was increasing it military forces beyond what it needs for defense.

The NATO leaders, in a communique at the close of their two-day summit meeting, said the Western allies were determined to maintain their solidarity, and where it has been weakened to restore it by removing the cause.

They said that maintaining their own defense effort had come up against difficulties resulting from the economic situation in the world. They also said they were determined to face these problems together and firmly.

Earlier, some European leaders praised Ford for reaffirming U.S. support to the NATO allies, but Turkey's premier attacked America's arms ban against his country as a "self-destructive act."

Gen. Vasco Goncalves, Portugal's leftist premier, was quoted as asking the allies for "more comprehension and less apprehension" and defending Portugal's approaches to the Soviet Union. He also promised that Portugal would remain a loyal ally, and said there hd been too much talk in the West about its affairs.

Ford and the other leaders agreed that because of the security provided by the alliance they want to cooperate with the Communist world rather than confront it.

They said it would be a step forward in this direction if there could be a successful conclusion soon to the conference on security and cooperation in Europe.

Nuns cultivate new habit

They're picking strawberries in absence of laborers

FARINA, Ill. (AP) — Nuns have been on their knees in Glenn Ernst's strawberry patch much of this week. Picking, not praying.

Ernst says that even in these hard times he couldn't find anyone else who'd stoop to the job.

Faced with the prospect of letting the fruit rot in the fields, he decided to give the berries to the sisters of St. Francis Convent in Effingham, about 30 miles north, for the harvesting.

Twenty-eight of Ernst's 240 Southern Illinois acres are planted in strawberries. This year, because of a warm spell, they've ripened faster than usual.

His farm crew couldn't keep up. In the past he's relied on a pick-them-yourself operation to take up the slack, but this year there is just too much fruit.

And despite pay of up to $30 a day, no one from nearby towns responded to his help wanted ads.

"There's a little town right next door here to me," he said Thursday. "Probably 75 per cent of the people on welfare or trying to get on it. You know how many are out here? Not one. Not one.

"If I could have got the labor in here we could have had them picked," Ernst, 53, said. "I thought, 'Well. I'll just give them away now.' So I thought, 'There's no finer organization to give them to than the sisters.' I'm Protestant, myself, but a lot of my friends around here are Catholic."

The first group of nuns came down Tuesday, the same day he asked whether they'd be interested. By Thursday about 15 sisters had tried their hands at the work.

"I would say they've got 40 or 50 cases," he said. "They can take a hundred cases or more if they want them. They are just welcome to go right ahead with them."

Sister Jolina Snyder said, "We are preserving them, freezing them for the convent. We thought it was pretty generous of him and we really appreciated it."

Sisters from a Springfield convent reported for work Thursday.

Most of the sisters work at a hospital. They planned to share the fruits of their labors with patients. After more than two hours of picking, Sister Jolina had just one complaint: "Sore knees." —

Brown hails vote on farm labor bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. predicted a new era of order and stability in California agriculture after final legislative passage of his landmark farm labor bill.

The compromise proposal won final legislative approval Thursday on a 64-10 state Assembly roll call, three days after passing the state Senate 31-7.

The final vote marked the most spectacular achievement so far of the 37-year-old governor's five-month administration. Brown personally summoned feuding union and grower factions and forged agreement among all major participants during a month of negotiatiions.

The measure awaiting Brown's signature is endorsed by most California growers including E & J Gallo, the State Chamber of Commerce, the California AFL-CIO and the state's two warring farm unions — Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers and the Teamsters Union.

It will require state-supervised secret elections before a labor union may be certified to represent workers on any California ranch.

It also authorizes harvest time strikes and a limited form of secondary boycotts by certified unions. It outlaws recognitional strikes.

A standing-room-only crowd packed the Assembly gallery and broke into cheers at the final vote.

Brown said he will sign the legislation next week. It will take effect Aug. 28, in time for the big fall lettuce harvest in the Salinas Valley and the table grape harvest in the San Joaquin Valley.

Those two harvests have been the focal point of most of the violence in California agriculture in the past decade.

Chavez has said he will challenge the Teamsters contract at Gallo in September, an action that could bring an end to his nationwide Gallo Wines boycott.

"I think it's a real milestone," Brown told an impromptu news conference in Los Angeles, where he was attending a State University and Colleges trustees meeting. "It's going to bring about a stability we've never had before," Brown said.

The Democratic governor said the measure will give farm workers self determination and guarantee their right to organize. He said it will give growers the stability and predictability they need in labor relations.

"It's a major step forward. It's something people have been trying to achieve for decades. There have been strikes up and down the California agricultural lands for years."

Brown has said the measure could set a standard for the nation.

The chairman of the House Agriculture Committee said the California law will help push Congress toward taking similar action.

But Congress will wait at least a year to see how California's law works, added Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash.

"I think the California act will be of great significance in considering this problem nationally," Foley told reporters at the California Livestock Symposium in Fresno Thursday.

How final vote went

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Here is the 64-10 roll call by which the state Assembly sent Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s secret ballot farm labor bill to the governor Thursday:

Thomas, Thurman, Torres, Vasconcellos, Vicencia, Warren, Wilson, Wornum, Z'berg. Total: 51.

State Sen. John Dunlap, D-Napa, glowed Thursday as the Legislature passed the farm labor bill. Dunlap was chief author of the bill. With his is Rose Bird, head of the state Agriculture Agency. They were standing on the Assembly floor when the vote was taken.

Regents leave beer decision up to each campus

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The controversial matter of whether or not to sell beer at college is up to each campus president after action of the State University and Colleges Trustees.

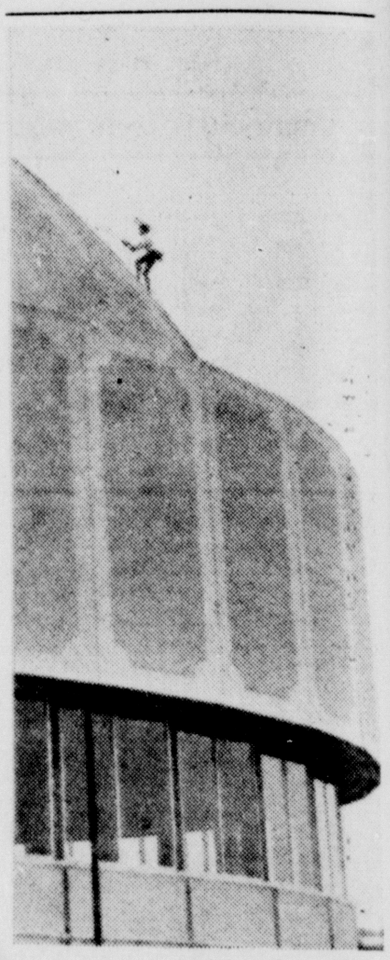

The trustees voted 9-7 Thursday to neither forbid nor allow the sale of beer on campus, but to leave the decision up to the president of each of the 19 schools in the system.

Many observers expected the board to ban beer sales on campus, but Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. delivered a strongly worded defense of the local autonomy resolution that won over some of the trustees during the sometimes acrimonious, hour-long debate.

"I find it arrogant, hypocritical and antithetical to a selfgoverned institution to sit around a table and tell people (students) who pay taxes (and) got to war whether they can drink...beer or not," Brown said.

The beer issue first came before the trustees last fall and was postponed several times. In January, Brown told the trustees the matter was "trivial," not worthy of the trustees' attention and should be left up to the individual schools. But on Thursday, the governor appealed to the conservative bent of the trustees by broadening the issue to decentralization throughout the system.

"I think it's a very, very important question that we return to individuals and small scale units of governments the ability to make decisions," Brown said. "It is a very fundamental question of how much we're willing to decentralize decision making."

Space project shifted to avoid L.A. hazards

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The Air Force has revised its space shuttle plans to eliminate possible dangers to the Los Angeles area, shifting the project here from Edwards Air Force Base.

Spokesmen at the Air Force Space and Missile Systems Organization here said Thursday a southerly approach from Edwards would take the 200,000-pound shuttlecraft over Los Angeles, resulting in a heavy sonic boom over the city and posing a possible crash hazard.

The new plans, still to be submitted to Congress for approval, relegate Edwards to a backup landing site, along with Hawaii and Guam.

Original Air Force plans called for vertical launches and polar orbit missions out of Vandenberg with conventional landings scheduled at Edwards. But the Air Force now says Vandenberg will be used for both launching and recovery of the $656 million space shuttle project when it gets underway in 1982.

But Edwards will be the site for first glide tests of the shuttlecraft in air launches from a modified jumbo jet in 1977 and for landings on the first four orbital tests out of Cape Canaveral in 1979 by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Also, they added, if the shuttlecraft were launched from Vandenberg it would not be able to land in Edwards in the event of an emergency occurring within 5.7 seconds of liftoff because the craft would not be able to reach the desert base and would be forced to land at sea.

Edwards also would be a difficult point to reach because of the earth's rotation in the event of an emergency aboard the shuttlecraft after one orbit.

A HIGH TIME IN CHICAGO

Michele Mauth, 18, wound up with a high-paying job in Chicago Thursday. Dressed in a chorus girl's outfit, she climbed a dome, then tap-danced on top of the 16-story structure. The stunt was to call attention to the $40 million dollar shopping center and amusement park in suburban Bolingbrook. The center opens next month.

Parents of suspected stolen baby will take blood tests

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Childs sobbed quietly as she and her husband emerged from court on their way to obtain blood tests to determine if an 8-month-old girl was the baby they believed had been stillborn.

"All I want is my baby back," Mrs. Childs said tearfully after a closed Juvenile Court hearing Thursday to determine the infant's parentage.

Also present at the hearing was Norma Armistead, 44, a nurse in custody for investigation of the murder of pregnant Kathryn Viramontes, 28.

The infant girl was found in Mrs. Armistead's apartment in connection with the Viramontes murder investigation. Mrs. Armistead, who worked as a nurse at Kaiser Hospital in Hollywood, contends she is the legal custodian of the girl.

But Van Nuys Divison Police Investigator Stanley Miller, with Kaiser Hospital cooperation, concluded that the nurse somehow managed to deliver Mrs. Childs' baby secretly in a hospital room last September. Then the nurse presented Mrs. Childs with a 9-day-old fetus to convince her the baby had died, Miller said.

"She's in shock," said Jerry Roth, attorney for Mrs. Childs and her husband William, 36, of Duarte. "You can imagine what she has gone through."

Last Friday, Kaiser Hospital officials informed the Childs that Mrs. Armistead had apparently spirited the healthy infant out of the hospital. The nurse obtained a birth certificate for the child, naming her "Cerry" Armistead.

The Childs want to call the baby Christy Ann and have been allowed to visit the baby in her foster home.

"She instinctively knew it was her baby," Roth said.

At Thursday's hearing, Senior Referee Julius Libow ordered that "appropriate medical tests" including blood samplings be made to determine whether Mr. and Mrs. Childs "could be the natural parents.

Libow pointed out that such tests are not conclusive, and at most can only prove that it was possible the Childs conceived the baby.

He said the girl will be released to the Childs, however, if the tests indicate they could be the parents and if there are no objections from Mrs. Armistead's attorney or from anyone else.

Seeks refugee family to farm plot, gets nowhere

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tom Hall has two acres of beans, fruit trees and 600 tomato plants and he wants a Vietnamese refugee family to tend them.

But he says he can't find a refugee farmer for all the red tape at the Camp Pendleton refugee center.

"I can't understand that there are 130,000 people with no place to go and it's a problem to find a farmer," he said.

Hall said he has written or phoned the seven volunteer agencies helping to relocate refugees in the United States.

The only response he's received, though, are form letters thanking him for his interest, he said.

Last Monday, Hall drove 60 miles north to Camp Pendleton, thinking he could find a refugee farmer himself.

Hall said he never even got chance to talk to one.

"First, I had to fill out a form with the guard at the gate to get in," he said. "Then they directed me to a trailer — I think it was a Red Cross trailer.

"I told the lady there I wanted to interview some farmers. She said, 'You can't do that. You have to wait for...the agencies to call you.'

"I said, 'but lady, I have 600 tomato plants and they need a farmer.'"

Hall is convinced, however, that he'll eventually get a refugee family to work his field. In fact, he's so convinced that he's moved into a trailer on the farm site so the refugees can live in his House.

County will ask Iran to pay welfare of shah's kin

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — Marin County will ask the government of Iran for help in retrieving $1,700 in welfare money spent on a grandniece of the Shah of Iran, the district attorney's office says.

"I just about came unglued when I read it," said Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton Hyams of local reports of the welfare assistance received by 15-year-old Aria Atabay.

Miss Atabay is the daughter of Gail Mildred Hohlweg and Amir Reza Atabay, a nephew of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, one of the world's richest men.

Hyams said Thursday that the San Francisco Bay area county will contact the Iranian embassy in Washington to ask its help in obtaining repayment of money spent on Miss Atabay.

Miss Atabay has lived for the past three weeks in a private foster home for which the county pays $187 a month. In addition, nine months' payments totaling $1,700 were made to Miss Hohlweg, Miss Atabay's caretaker, under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

Miss Hohlweg, who retains her family name, divorced Atabay in 1960 after a brief marriage.

Foster murder case now in hands of jury

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Marcus Foster murder trial, a tangled conspiracy case arising from a brutal killing, goes to the jury today.

Superior Court Judge Elvin Sheehy told the eight women and four men Thursday to come to court with nightgowns and toothbrushes for an overnight stay at a hotel. He said he expected deliberation to continue during the weekend.

Sheehy spoke after attorneys for the prosecution and two Symbionese Liberation Army members made their final appeals to the jury.

Foster, Oakland's superintendent of schools, was shot in the back from ambush with cyanide-tipped bullets Nov. 6, 1973. His top aide, Robert Blackburn, was wounded in the attack.

Neither Blackburn nor any other prosecution witness placed defendants Joseph Remiro and Russell Little at the scene. But the prosecution claimed they were deeply involved in an SLA plot to kill Foster and Blackburn.

"Marcus Foster was killed with the weapon of Russell Little and with the weapon of Joseph Michael Remiro," Alameda County Dist. Atty. Lowell Jensen said Thursday.

"And there is a mass of evidence that they provided the frame of mind, the thinking, the promoting, the instigating...of this particularly evil, profoundly evil kind of crime."

The "evidence" he cited was a heap of documents, weapons and ammunition found in a Concord house where fire broke out Jan. 10, 1974, hours after Little and Remiro were arrested.

Included was what prosecution witnesses called the original version of an SLA communique saying it had killed Foster because of a new student identification program in the Oakland schools.

"Marcus Foster was indicted by a 'court of the people' in Concord," Jensen said. "He was notified by being shot in the back."

The defense argued there was no evidence that Little or Remiro had written any communiques or even set foot in the house before the killing.

"These individuals are not on trial for being members of the Symbionese Liberation Army," Little's public defender, James Jenner, said Thursday.

"No single document directly relating to Foster has my client's fingerprint on it...There's no evidence at the scene of the crime that ties my client in...What evidence is there of specific intent to agree to this crime?"

Jenner also disputed two claims by Jensen about a .38-caliber Rossi pistol: that Little had owned it and that it was a murder weapon.

Remiro's lawyer, Edward Merrill, didn't deny that Remiro had owned the other fatal weapon, a .380 Walther pistol.

All sides joined in pointing the figer of blame at Nancy Ling Perry, one of six SLA members killed last May in a shootout with Los Angeles police.

"If society needs vindication for the death of Foster, does not that vindication lie in the rubble of the Los Angeles house?" asked Jenner.

But Jensen said the testimony of defense witness Rudolph Henderson that Mrs. Perry had confessed the Foster killing ultimately added fuel to the conspiracy case.

"We agree she was guilty," the prosecutor said. "But counsel (Jenner) says the conspiracy is a sham. This shows the conspiracy was true, and one of the principals was Nancy Ling Perry."

Jewish group says it hijacked Levi shipment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A telephone caller voicing militant Jewish rhetoric has claimed responsibility for the hijacking of more than 30,000 pairs of Levi Strauss jeans from a truck.

"We have liberated several tons of Levis and are holding them hostage against the (Walter) Haas family because of their crimes against the Jewish people," the caller told The Associated Press on Thursday.

Accusing the Levi Strauss owners of anti-Jewish attitudes, the caller identified himself as "Doug Breuner" and said he was a member of the "Jews for a Democratic Jewish Welfare Federation." The FBI said it had never heard of the group.

A truck and trailer carrying the 793 cartons of pants valued at more $450,000 were stolen Tuesday from a Santa Clara truck lot.

THE YF16 ARRIVES General Dynamics' YF16 lands at Le Bourget airport Thursday for the Paris Air Show. The American plane is in competition with France's Mirage F1E for the $2 billion 350-plane order by Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium. Later the blue and red plane exhibited its much touted maneuverability with a spectacular display confined to the airport perimeter. The Mirage, however, needed more room for its turns and dives.

A new base of operations for Nixon?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some close advisers to former President Richard M. Nixon have urged him to establish a new base of operations in New York, a Los Angeles source says.

Nixon has resided at his seaside estate in San Clemente, about 75 miles south of Los Angeles, since he resigned the presidency last year.

In a report today, the source said so far Nixon has made no decisions on selling his San Clemente property, moving to New York or retaining his home overlooking the Pacific and setting up an office on the East Coast.

The source said that among those present at a recent strategy session in Nixon's California home were longtime advisers C.B. (Bebe) Rebozo and Robert H. Abplanalp, who helped Nixon finance his Florida and California homes, and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who once practiced law with Nixon in New York.

Political, social and business associates of the former chief executive met to discuss Nixon's future, the source said. According to the report, the consensus was that Nixon should move east for greater communication with national and international leaders.

The report said its sources stressed that no decision is imminent, but that Nixon wanted to carefully plan his exit from his self-imposed isolation and sought the counsel of familiar advisers of his past.

"He is not going to cut his ties with Orange County or California," one source said.

According to those who have seen him, Nixon has asked that details of their conversations not be discussed, especially in areas which might interfere with the actions of his chosen successor, President Ford.

But the former president was described as alert to national and worldwide developments and in regular contact with U.S. and world leaders.

Nixon suffered a severe bout of phlebitis last fall. His physicians and those who have seen him lately say he has made a substantial recovery.

Judge issues injunction against regrading beef

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the U.S. Department of Agriculture cannot change the way it grades the nation's beef.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert V. Denney, issuing a permanent injunction against the USDA Thursday, called the proposed regulations "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion or otherwise not in accordance with law."

He ruled the department failed to say adequately what economic impact the changes would have and improperly tied quality grading to yield grading, or the amount of usable meat a carcass will yield.

The proposed changes would have lowered the standards for fat marbling — the tiny specks of fat through red meat felt to be the best indicator of how tasty, tender and juicy beef will be. This would have allowed some cattle now graded "good" to move up to "choice," and some "choice" animals to get a "prime" grade.

Consumer groups charged that the proposed standards would have meant retailers could charge the same amount of money for inferior meat, and meat packers said the new regulations would increase their costs.

But the government claimed current marbling standards were too high, and cattle growers said they had to spend too much on feed to fatten their beef to meet the standards.

Denney, a former Nebraska congressman who has raised some cattle himself, issued a preliminary injunction last month halting the scheduled April 14 start of the new standards.

The injunction was upheld by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals, but the higher court amended the injunction to a 45-day time limit and ordered Denney to hold hearings on a suit filed by the Independent Meat Packers Association of Omaha (IMPAO).

Denney held two weeks of hearings, which ended last Friday. Nearly 30 witnesses were called to testify as "experts" for and against the new standards, and more than 2,000 pages of testimony were taken. His decision beat the 45-day limit by one day.

The government and its line intervenor, the Denver-based American National Cattlemen's Association, have 10 days to file notice of appeal of the latest ruling to the 8th Circuit Court, and Denney said he felt such a notice would probably be filed Friday.

Denney's decision barely touched on the highly controversial marbling issue. Instead he based his ruling on what he judged to be flaws in the government's presentation of its case for the changes:

—The failure to file a complete economic impact statement.

—The tying of yield grading to quality grading.

Quality grading and yield grading are now optional. Under the proposed guidelines only quality grading would be optional, and if a carcass was quality graded it would have to be yield graded.

4 months probation

Hearst girl pleads guilty in drug case

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Anne Randolph Hearst, sister of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court today to a misdemeanor drug charge and was placed on probation for four months.

Judge John T. Curtin said if Miss Hearst successfully completes her probation period, he lould be willing to consider a motion to dismiss the charge. This, in effect, would remove the conviction from her record.

Miss Hearst, 19, a student at Regis College in Denver, and Donald R. Moffett, 21, of Denver, were arrested at the Rainbow Bridge in Niagara Falls March 4 while driving from Canada into the United States.

Federl drug authorities charged them with possession of a controlled substance, saying they had found 12 amphetamine pills or "speed" in Moffett's sock.

Roger P. Williams, an assistant U.S. attorney, told newsmen today that the government is dropping the charge against Moffett.

Williams said that although the tablets were found in Moffett's sock, both Moffett and Miss Hearst said the tablets belonged to her.

Williams said the maximum penalties for the charge are a fine of not more than $5,000, imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

Miss Hearst's appearance in federal court came earlier than had been expected. U.S. Magistrate Edmund F. Maxwell had twice postponed preliminary hearings for her and had set the latest hearing date for June 13.

Williams said Miss Hearst's lawyer, George L. Grobe Jr. of Buffalo, phoned the U.S. attorney's office Thursday and said Miss Hearst wanted to be in court today to enter a plea.

Because of a technicality in the law, Williams said, a magistrate could not accept a plea to the charge

'God, devil made her kill baby

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The young wife of an Air Force sergeant who says "God and the devil" made her kill her 7-day-old son is being held in a psychiatric ward.

Barbara P. Strickland, 21, was charged with murder after beating police officers with the bloodied body of her son, Roland Jr. She was confined to the psychiatric ward of Peter Smith Hospital. Bond was set at $10,000.

Police were called to Mrs. Strickland's blood-streaked apartment Wednesday night. They found her sitting amid shattered window glass and disarranged furniture.

Officer R. G. Erwin said she was holding the bloody body of her infant and the officer asked her to give it to him.

Erwin said she held the body by its ankles and began striking him with it, then ran into the bedroom, saying, "God and the devil made me do it." He said Mrs. Stricklnd then leaped onto the back of officer P. S. Olguin.

She threw the baby's body to the floor and was taken into custody, the officers said.

Police said witnesses told them Mrs. Strickland threw the baby through an apartment window, then walked around outside with the body slung over her shoulder.

Neighbors said she hurled a Bible into a neighbor's yard and said, "Come see my baby. They (God and the devil) made me do it."

Trio arrested with $500,000 in heroin

Three narcotic suspects arrested Wednesday with nearly a pound of substance believed to be heroin in their car are scheduled to be arraigned today in West Valley Municipal Court.

Investigators said the heroin, believed from Mexico, would have a street value of $500,000. Officers also found in the car's trunk an attache case with $8,750.

Those arrested were Fred Hill, 31, Decatur, Ga., Cheryl Dumas, 21, Atlanta, Ga., and Jerry Walker, 31, Hartford, Conn. All were charged with possession of heroin for sale.

Federal narcotic officers have identified Hill as a major narcotic supplier on the East Coast. The suspects were believed en route from Los Angeles to Eastern states when arrested.

The three still in custody, were scheduled to appear at 1:30 p.m. before Judge William Hyde in the Ontario court. Hill's bail was set at $150,000, and for the other two, $75,000 each.

Highway patrolmen arrested the trio on the freeway near Vineyard Avenue at the request of federal agents. Warned the agents may be armed, officers stopped eastbound traffic for about five minutes until the suspects were taken into custody. Only a starter pistol, with eight cartridges, was found on one suspect.

2 girls rob boy at knifepoint

A 14-year-old boy was robbed of $6 at knifepoint by two young girls at 500 E. Carlton St., Ontario.

Police said the victim, Richard Bortner of Ontario, walked by the two girls, aged 12 and 13, who allegedly were sniffing glue under a tree, Thursday at 9 a.m. They got up, held a small knife to his side and demanded money.

The girls, each described as being about 5-foot-7, 130 pounds, feld on foot.

Two jailed in shooting incident freed on bail

Two suspects, arrested early Thursday in connection with one of two minor shooting incidents in Pomona, were released later on bail pending further investigation of their case.

They are James George Farley, 32, of 4400 Philadelphia St., Chino, and Thomas Wilford Paquet, 30, of 383 Pasadena Ave., Pomona. Both were booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

That shooting was in the 4200 block of Valley Boulevard in Pomona where Michael David Collins, 22, of Montclair, was hit by shotgun pellets fired through his car window. The shot came from another car. Collins was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police later arrested Farley and Paquet whom they found in a car parked in the 1300 block of W. Holt Avenue. Officers said they found a shotgun in the car. Both men denied involvement in the incident.

No arrests have been made in the second shooting. In that incident, Cal Poly student Somsakdi Suntharaphat, 33, was wounded slightly when a shotgun blast broke his car window as he was driving at Campus and Ridgeway avenues in Pomona.

51,000 N.Y. employes to be cut

Beame's shock budget

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame, with scathing denunciations of Republican lawmakers and Wall Street bankers, has announced an $11.89 billion "shock therapy" budget that he says will cut 51,000 employes from the city payroll by June 30.

In addition to the 13,782 dismissals Beame already had ordered, the new 1975-76 "crisis-level" budget called for layoffs of another 37,315 city employes. One of every three policemen and sanitation workers and one of every five firemen will be fired. Workers in education, health, transportation, housing, parks and municipal government are also marked for dismissal.

Beame said the budget would mean:

—Curtailment or elimination of school programs; increased class sizes; reduction or elimination of special classes, school lunches and other activities, and elimination of 11,000 education jobs.

—A cut of more than 20,000 students in the City University's September freshmen class.

—Firing of 4,200 police; 700 police civilian employes, and elimination of the entire 2,300-member school crossing guard unit.

—Firing of 2,300 fire fighters and elimination of scores of engine and ladder companies.

—Firing of 2,882 sanitation workers; garbage collection reductions throughout the city, and a 50 per cent cut in snow removal services.

—Closing of numerous branch libraries or shortened hours; and shorter visiting hours at zoos and museums.

Accompanied by Gov. Hugh L. Carey, Beame had journeyed in vain to Washington to ask Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and President Ford for financial help. Their turndowns drew scorn from the mayor.

Hours before the mayor's delivery of the budget message, the city received from Albany a $200 million advance on welfare payments due from the state in the first quarter of 1976. This permitted the city to meet bond and payroll obligations due today. But Beame was irked by what he thought was an unsympathetic reception by state legislators at Albany.

City Council Vice President Thomas J. Cuite said he had "never seen a more horrifying budget message" in his 22 years in public office. He accused the Republican state senators of "playing Russian roulette with the life of the city."

"These are not threats," the Democratic mayor said Thursday evening when he presented the country's second largest budget to a jam-packed, televised session of the 43-member City Council, the Board of Estimate, the heads of all city departments and leaders of the municipal labor unions.

"Without recourse to additional aid, we must move from programmed recovery to shock therapy," he said.

In an emotional 20-minute speech, Beame lashed out at the financial community, accusing it of lack unresponsiveness to the city's monetary needs "despite unprecedented actions taken by my administration to move the city to a sounder financial position."

Beame called for a congressional inquiry into the banks' "financial shenanigans" which he said were threatening the foundations of the nation's largest city. "I believe the people of this city deserve some answers to what is being done to them," he said.

HE'LL MAKE IT HANDS DOWN High school sophomore Jimmy Certain, 15, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is sure of one thing—he will not allow the effects of polio to keep him from a world's record for walking on his hands. A victim of polio at 2 months, Jimmy couldn't walk until he was 7 years old. He has bettered the listed time of 29.5 seconds for walking 50 yards on his hands. Jimmy's physical education teacher, Garry Weller, checks his time on a recent practice walk.

Pension bill OK'd

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sheriffs and other public officials couldn't draw a salary and pension for the same job at the same time under a bill which has been sent to the governor's desk.

The Assembly completed passage of the measure by Assemblyman Tom Suitt, D-Palm Springs, Thursday. The Assembly vote was 59-0. The Senate had approved it 35-0.

Suitt introduced the bill after seven sheriffs and a county clerk won reelection, retired, and then took office again, thus getting both a pension and salary.

The bill wouldn't affect them — only officials who might try the same thing in the future.

The bill is AB 309.

B1 test watched by Barry

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The Air Force's bomber of the future, the B1, was under the watchful eye of Sen. Barry Goldwater on its latest test flight.

"A very stable airplane," Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Thursday after copiloting an F4 Phantom jet behind the big bomber for about two hours of the 6-hour, 18-minute test flight.

Goldwater is a member of the Senate Armed Services Research and Development Subcommittee.

There were two refuelings and five pressure and vibration tests at altitudes ranging from 3,000 feet to 20,000 feet, officials said.

Lawyer fee bill killed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — One of several bills to limit lawyers' fees in medical malpractice cases has been killed in the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

The bill by Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, was defeated Thursday.

It would have limited lawyers to 10 per cent of any settlement over $1,667. The first $1,667 could be divided as plaintiff and lawyer agreed.

Punishment bill okayed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill to ban corporal punishment in California's schools, except when approved by a parent, has squeaked through the Assembly.

A 41-28 vote Thursday sent the measure by Assemblywoman Leona Egeland, D-San Jose, to the Senate.

Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, said he was against it because "the very kind of children who need it will have parents who refuse permission."

Steelworkers facing rough time

SPARROWS POINT, Md. (AP) — Spend part of a day in the union hall of Steel Workers of America Local 2609 AFL-CIO, and you'll discover the meaning of "laid off."

One by one they file in, wearing rumpled leisure clothes, wondering why their state unemployment benefit check hasn't arrived. Because without the state check, there can be no Supplemental Unemployment Benfits, or SUB pay, in which case they have nothing.

A spokesman for Bethlehem Steel's Sparrows Point complex says 2,500 workers are laid off and an unspecified number "scheduled off." Union officials say at least 4,000 employes fit that latter category.

At full output, the plant employs about 22,000, meaning almost a third of the normal Sparrows Point work force is out of work.

The steel workers, for the most part, say they're managing.

"If you normally get $7 an hour and work a 40-hour week, that's $280 a week," explained Don Kelner, a union official. "If you've worked two years and are eligible for SUB, you get $89 in unemployment and $93 in SUB pay, for a total of $182. That's $100 less a week, but if you tighten up, you can get by."

Local merchants candidly admit without attribution that they are feeling the pinch. As the saleslady in a shoe store put it: "What else can you expect, we live and die by the Point."

Bartenders say the furloughed men haven't changed to cheaper drinks, but they buy fewer than their more fortunate colleagues.

"Nothing's going to stop me from having a couple beers," says one out-of-work steelworker who would identify himself only as Mark. "I've got a wife and three kids at home, a little bit saved up, and with the SUB pay we'll get by. But I sure would like to know what's going on, since the recession is supposed to be bottoming out."

Local 2609 President David Wilson is convinced the problem goes beyond just supply and demand, as the company maintains.

"Look, regardless how this sounds, I think the steel industry as a whole is trying to create a shortage," Wilson said. "Steel imports to the U.S. are rising while I got 7,000 union members out of work.

Traditionally the industry has ebbed and flowed with the rest of the economy, and the auto industry in particular. But strong demand from manufacturers of capital goods made the industry's first-quarter profits jump 59 per cent above the year-earlier period.

However, Bethlehem officials say they expect second-quarter profits to drop below last year's level while shipments continue to erode.

NATO SUMMIT TABLE — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization opens the 1975 Summit Thursday in Brussels.

Solar heating fraud feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials fear that fast-buck artists and unwary consumers will accompany what they believe is a coming boom in the sale of solar heating units for homes.

The fledgling solar heating industry has no technical standards to measure performance of a heating unit. Thus, the unsuspecting consumer could become the victim of exaggerated claims about how well a heating unit will perform.

Delegates at a solar industry exposition here this week have mentioned a manufacturer who claimed his unit would produce more energy than the sun radiates to the ground.

"We want to promote manufacturers of integrity and expose the flim flam," said Joseph C. Dawson of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's office of consumer affairs.

Virginia Knauer, President Ford's consumer affairs adviser, warned that shoddy products could kill the solar heating industry before its gets into full swing.

In 1909 on April 6, Adm. Robert E. Perry reached the North Pole. It was his sixth attempt.

Sanford to run for Demo nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terry Sanford, president of Duke University and former governor of North Carolina, today announced his candidacy for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

Sanford, 57, the sixth Democrat to enter the race, vowed an administration that would "complete and fulfill the promise of the American Revolution."

Sanford said he would enter between 17 and 20 primary campaigns, "not expecting to win them all, but expecting to lay out in all of them the creative tasks that lie before us."

Sanford's announcement makes official a bid that has been unofficially in the works for months.

And he lost no time in making it clear that his first target is Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, the only other presidential hopeful he mentioned by name in a prepared speech.

Wallace plans to announce his candidacy early next month.

"George Wallace has fooled the people who have believed in him by calling forth the easy fears and avoiding the complex and tough-minded solutions," Sanford said. "I have a duty to show the nation that the South stands for more than the politics of fear."

TERRY SANFORD

Sanford waged a brief but unsuccessful campaign for the presidency in 1972. He served as North Carolina governor in the early 1960s, establishing an image as a moderate, and served last year as chairman of the Democratic commission that wrote the new party charter adopted at last December's mini-convention.

Sanford said, if elected, he would initiate sweeping economic reforms including establishment of standby provisions for temporary jobs so that "everyone who wanted to work could get a job."

He also proposed a national economic council of top government and congressional officials to revise and coordinate U.S. money policies and an overhaul of the Federal Reserve System to "bring it more directly into the sphere of the representative of the people, the President."

Link Mafia to exports of grain

By JERRY BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are investigating the possibility that organized crime may be involved in the U.S. grain-export trade, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Thursday. He said any illegal activities that are uncovered will be ended.

"We are looking for it," Butz said in response to queries from newsmen about whether his department has evidence organized crime is involved. "We are looking for any evidence we can find. Whatever we find that is illegal, we are going to clean up."

"Shady practices may be a way of life in international grain trade around the world, but we're going to stop it in this country," Butz added. "We are looking at any port in this country where we have complaints, or where we suspect that there is improper activity."

The New York Times quoted Butz in today's editions as saying that the investigation of alleged corruption in the handling of grain shipments has spread to every major grain port in the nation.

The Times said Butz also told one of its reporters in an interview that there was evidence that organized crime was involved.

There have been published reports in recent weeks of complaints from nations buying U.S grain, including the Soviet Union, that much of the grain they received was unfit for use and in violation of contract specifications.

The Agriculture Department has been conducting a year-long investigation of bribery and other charges which has led to indictments against several government-licensed grain inspectors and others.

Students to recreate battle as film epic

FRESNO (AP) — College students here will travel "back into time" to re-create and film the Battle of Cowpens, a major clash in the American Revolutionary War.

Dr. Robert Billings, chairman of the Fresno State University English Department, will head the project and write the script to commemorate the nation's Bicentennial next year.

"We're trying to see if we can't somehow get ourselves back into time to experience, through our own participation, as close as possible what actually happened there," Billings explained Wednesday.

"On a university campus you have people with various sorts of expertise. If you can get them all operating around a core project, you can do something that would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars otherwise."

The full-length film will revolve around five single-unit classes to be offered this fall in FSU's Experimental College. Billings will teach one class covering the historical aspects of the battle.

Other classes include a home economics course to design and create uniforms, an industrial arts class to make weapons, an animal science course to handle the proposed 400-horse cavalry force and a radio-television course where the actual filming will take place.

Billings estimated film alone would cost as much as $20,000, but said grants and community support are being sought to help defray expenses.

He called the battle a "major turning point" in the war. "From 1777 to 1780 it was a very dark period for the American cause. There were no major victories and the British were simply annihilating our armies in the south.

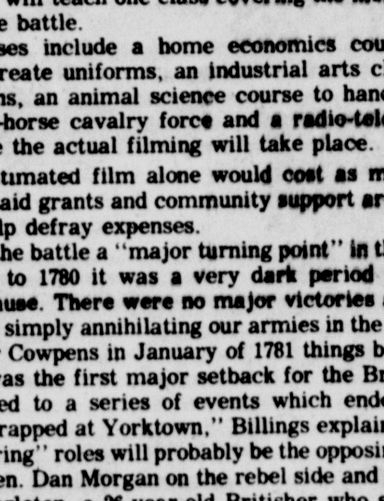

"But after Cowpens in January of 1781 things began to change. It was the first major setback for the British in years and led to a series of events which ended with Cornwallis trapped at Yorktown," Billings explained.

The "starring" roles will probably be the opposing commanders, Gen. Dan Morgan on the rebel side and Lt. Col. Banastre Tarleton, a 26-year-old Britisher who suffered his first real defeat in the rolling hills of South Carolina near Hannah's Cowpens, a cattle feeding area which gave the battle its picturesque name.

Billings says he hopes to come up with enough actors to re-create the battle on a one-to-one basis — requiring about 2,000 actor-soldiers. A rural area of nearby Clovis is being eyed for the battlefield.

FBI agent is Middy queen

CALIFORNIAN CHARLENE GRAVES AND MIDSHIPMAN MICHAEL TRACY

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—All eyes will be on a 22-year-old Californian next week as she continues the U.S. Naval Academy tradition of transfering the colors.

The Naval Academy announced Wednesday Charleen Ann Graves will act as color girl for 1975.

The ceremony has a history of more than 100 years as the colors are given to the top company of the year. Receiving top honors for the 1974-1975 school year will be the 9th Company headed by Miss Graves' boyfriend Midshipman Michael C. Tracy.

The company commander chooses the color girl each year. "Mike's company came in first. Since I go with him, he asked me to go and escort him," Miss Graves explained.

Is she nervous? "Yes, I am. Very much."

The ceremony is set for next Tuesday. Miss Graves says she has yet to rehearse her part. But a rehearsal is in the works for Saturday morning.

The 1975 color girl works for the FBI and is now in training to become a stenographer. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Graves, of Grover City, Calif., Miss Graves now lives in Greenbelt, Md.

She says she came to Maryland for one year and might decide to ask for a transfer back to California.

Each year, the Naval Academy's 36 companies compete for the honor of carrying the colors for a year. The colors are transferred to the winning company as part of June Week activities leading up to graduation.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller is to speak at this year's graduation ceremony at Navy-Marine Corps Stadium June 4.

Star studies are going underground

BARBERTON, Ohio (AP) — Scientists are going deep below the earth's surface in their relentless quest for more knowledge about the stars.

In the world's deepest limestone mine, half a mile below PPG Industries' chemical complex at Barberton, a stellar observatory has been installed to measure energy believed released by dying stars.

This star study links similar underground observatories at the Homestead Mine at Lead, S.D., and the Mont Blanc tunnel in Italy.

It is designed to track and measure antineutrinos, massless high-energy particles thought to be emitted by collapsing stars.

"Historically scientists have concentrated on studying the surface of the stars," said Dr. Kenneth Lande, a University of Pennsylvania physics professor in charge of the Barberton project.

"One of the interesting questions now is how the energy a star radiates is created and given off."

Lande, colleagues from his university and scientists from the University of Texas, hope to show that antineutrinos are emitted by dying stars, to locate the sources of the particles and to measure the frequency of the bursts.

To capture the elusive particles, huge steel containers filled with tons of deionized water have been installed at each site. The sites deep in the earth were selected to protect sensitive measuring equipment attached to the containers from cosmic radiation common on the earth's surface.

The deep earth sites present no problems in studying antineutrinos. Lande said antineutrinos pass completely through matter and detectors count as many impulses coming through the other side of the earth as through the roof of the mines.

When an antineutrino enters a detector it reacts with water, creating a light impulse which is monitored by photo tubes at one end of the container. The intensity of the light impulse and the entry time of the particle are recorded by clocks capable of measuring time to one 20-millionth of a second, Lande said.

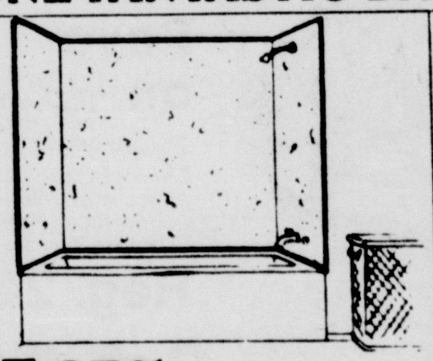

By comparing entry times of particles at each observatory, the direction of the neutrino's flight can be determined by a process similar to triangulation, Lande said.

Addition of a fourth observatory in the Soviet Union this year will allow scientists to pin-point the source of the particle at one end of the direction line., Lande said.

New gas rationing plan readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — —A government task force has drawn up a standby plan for gasoline rationing that would give every licensed driver the same amount of fuel regardless of where he lives or how far he drives to work.

The 12-volume, 3,000-page study was delivered recently to Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb. A copy of the summary was obtained by The Associated Press.

The precautionary plan lays out the administrative structure that would be required to carry out gasoline rationing, a move President Ford has said repeatedly he is determined to avoid.

The task force estimated rationing could be fully operational within 90 days of a decision to go ahead. The program would cost an estimated $400 million to operate to get started, and would require 93,000 employes to administer.

The estimated annual cost, once put into effect, would be nearly $2 billion.

"It has been assumed throughout this plan that the program will be considered for implementation only in the even of an emergency shortage of gasoline," the report said. "It has not been designed as a means to cut demand in 'normal' times."

The report did not state what would constitute an emergency. It also gave no estimate of how much gasoline would be allocated to each licensed driver. That figure would be based upon existing supplies at the time rationing were implemented.

However, the figure mentioned most frequently by energy officials has been nine gallons a week.

The task force specifically rejected suggestions that individual allocations be based on whether a person lives in an urban or rural area or on the distance he normally drives.

The program would utilize the 4.8 billion rationing coupons printed by the government in early 1974, after the Arab oil boycott imposed in October 1973, caused severe gasoline shortages throughout the country.

"Private users will be defined as all individuals holding valid state-issued licenses to operate a private motor vehicle," the report said. "All private users will receive entitlements with the same gallonage value."

"All coupons are planned to have the same value in successive series," the report continued. "The constant value is expected to be four, five or six gallons per coupon.

"Private users will receive three series of coupons during each issuance period. Series will become valid on dates set by the administrator. The ration period will be of variable length, to be set prior to each period.

"Coupons will be valid indefinitely, although the administrator will retain authority to recall a particular series after giving sufficient notice."

The plans also calls for coupons to be completely transferrable.

"FEA will encourage a vigorous competitive market for coupons," the report said. "This is intended to prevent a black market and permit a redistribution of income based on entitlements."

"Price controls will be imposed at all levels to prevent windfall profits accruing to the oil industry," the task force recommended.

The Ford administration has been proceeding under the assumption it has the power to begin rationing in a national emergency; however Congress is considering legislation requested by Ford that would give him clearer authority.

Under the task force's precautionary plan each state would receive a special setaside allotment for distribution to persons determined to have special need for additional fuel.

Coupons would be delivered in armored cars to 29 inventory control points throughout the country and then sent by registered mail to distribution points.

Commercial and nonprofit users would receive their gasoline allocations in the form of fuel checks which could be exchanged for coupons at designated banks.

Licensed drivers would pick up their coupons at 40,000 issuance points around the country. The points to be designated by FEA probably would include federal savings and loan associations, federal credit unions and offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Riles defines school focus: the individual

A renewed trend to treat a student as an individual rather than a statistic is emerging in California, Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, said here Thursday night.

The trend is one of three currently being defined by educators throughout the state, Riles told 250 guests at the Pomona Chamber of Commerce's annual President's Dinner at Griswold's in Claremont.

He said that in the past the system tended to treat students as "a unit of ADA (average daily attendance). Small wonder many grew hostile and violent. We now know better."

He defined the other two trends in education today as involving the school in the community and the community in the school; and providing an equal and adequate educational opportunity for all of California's children.

"This third trend gives us hope for a better life, a better world for our children. Equal educational opportunities for all students should be expected as a matter of course."

Financing of the equal educational opportunities, Riles feels, will come through settlement of the Serrano-Priest case, now before the state Supreme Court, which earlier found the present method of financing public education in California to be unconstitutional.

"When this case is resolved," Riles said, "there will be a sharing of the resources.

"We must not allow our school districts to become equally poor and end up with mediocre schools. Our youth must function in the latter part of this century. We have to give them everything we can give."

Riles complimented the Pomona businessmen and school district employes and board members in attendance on being "one of four districts in Los Angeles County to get approval of tax overrides" Tuesday.

"I'm pleased with this outpouring of support (of public education) in Pomona," said Riles. "This says something about the direction you intend to go."

The "universal yardstick" for measuring quality communities is quality schools, he continued.

"If you have good schools, people with school-age children will come to you. If you do not, they will leave you. You have recognized this, and you are working to improve."

Riles called Pomona a "unique city with its own special advantages and its own special problems to be solved."

He spoke of the state Early Childhood Education (ECE) program which he initiated, and defined it as an effort to begin at the earliest age possible to correct deficiencies in the public education system.

"In the past," Riles said, "we sorted children into groups and forced them to fit the system. No wonder many dropped out. Parents with more than one child know no two children are alike."

State task forces in all areas of public education are making one common recommendation to him.

The "critical emphasis," he said, is "starting with the needs of the learner. First you determine the need, then you determine how to meet it."

He praised the 117,000 parent volunteers in the state who are involved in the ECE program. "And another facet of this program is that we reward achievement," he said.

Pomona started its ECE program in two schools last year. This year it has programs in four schools. "Hopefully, there will be more next year," said Riles.

Riles challenged the businessmen to "open up your businesses to provide your students with experience. You can find the strategies to show students what the real world of work is all about," he said.

Riles said having a school man (Lynn Rountree, assistant superintendent of personnel in Pomona schools) as the next chamber president is good.

"This is an example of what I believe will have to happen" to make public education successful, Riles said. "You in the Chamber of Commerce belong in the public school system, too."

Riles was introduced by Richard Clowse, county superintendent of public instruction.

Pomona school board president Don Donnelly and Pomona Chamber of Commerce President Robert Lewis, presented Riles plaques expressing appreciation for his contributions to public education.

UP, UP AND AWAY

Mixing with other children and playing in the great outdoors are some of the benefits of going to camp. Many valley children have never been to camp, and your dollars will send them.

Send-a-kid-to-camp

This country was founded on the belief that all persons are created equal and all have the right to pursue happiness in their own way.

Certainly, all persons are equal before the law and may puruse happiness in their own way. But not all persons are equal when it comes to financial backgrounds.

Some children are born into rich families and others into poor families. No child can pick his family.

To help those children less fortunate than other children the Donrey Public Foundation is conducting the Send-a-Kid-to-Camp Drive.

It costs $60 to send a child to one week of summer camp. Many children want to go to camp but not all can afford to. Don and Davie want to go but their mother has no money to send them.

Don and Davie are 12-year-old twins. They were born in Watts and have lived in Pomona for 10 years.

They are the oldest children out of a family of five. Their father deserted the family in 1970.

Their mother has tried to keep the family together and was working until she injured her back. She has had to have major surgery three times and is now totally disabled. In addition one of the twins damaged his sight and is now blind in one eye.

Don and Davie are athletic boys and enjoy the outdoors. They belong to Pop Warner football and play baseball with the Parks and Recreation Department.

With her children now in school their mother is able to rest during the day so that she might tend to them in the evening. But with school almost out for summer vacation, she doesn't know how she'll manage. She can't move much and most of her time will be taken up in caring for the younger children. The family lives on the disability payments she receives from the government.

You can help send Don and Davie to camp. They have never been to the mountains before and would love to go.

There are many Dons and Davies in the valley that would like to go to camp. Won't you give them a chance?

Send in your contributions today to the Donrey Public Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 2708, Pomona, Calif. 91766. All contributions are tax deductible and will be used solely for the purpose of sending a child to camp.

Each day a list of all contributors will be printed in the Progress Bulletin unless persons specify that they wish to remain anonmyous.

Contributors to the Send-a-kid-to-camp drive now include Mr. and Mrs. Castle Stewart of Pomona; Pearl J. McRae of Pomona; Ethel Phelps of San Dimas; Mavis G. Sharp of San Dimas; Mary E. Helsley of Claremont; and one anonymous contributor.

Lloyd vows effort to aid Freightliner, Jobs

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., Thursday assured unemployed workers at the Freightliner Corp. facility in Chino that he would do his "level best" to get the plant open and operating again.

"It is devastating to have over 1,000 employes not working," he declared. "I will try to put pressure where we can get the plant open."

Some 100 persons who were laid off since last March met with the area legislator in the stilled assembly factory. Employment has dropped there from 1,091 to only nine.

Before the shutdown last March, the plant was producing 14 heavy duty trucks per day. The nine employes still on the payroll supply parts for customers and provide plant security.

Both management and employes have attributed the drop in demand for new trucks to proposed federal air brake standards which could up the price from $1,500 to $3,000 per unit.

But Lloyd reported this was only one of many factors involved. He cited the firm being involved in a specialized area, excise tax on trucks, and the general economy.

The legislator pledged to support repeal of the excise tax on trucks to mitigate the added costs of the proposed federal requirement for anti-lock, fail-safe braking systems. He preferred, however, to see modifications made to the new braking standards.

Lloyd said he had suggested three engineering modifications to the National Highway and Traffic Safety Administration. These include engineering modifications to reduce the cost of the improved braking system; making it optional now with a mandatory review at a later date; and providing tax incentives to encourage truck operators to buy vehicles with the improved braking systems.

But Lloyd emphasized there is a general lag in truck sales due to the current economic recession. He noted 45,000 trucks which remain unsold are not affected by the new braking standards.

The legislator did present a bright forecast to the workers. "I can see an upturn in the economic situation and I think Freightliner will open this plant and be back in business by the end of the year."

WANT PLANT OPEN

Rep. Jim Lloyd, left, and John Moore, materials manager at the Freightliner Corp. plant in Chino, discuss the reopening of the facility with workers laid off in March.

O-M joins project in economy measure

The Ontario-Montclair school board voted Thursday to set up a Special Projects Services Department to focus the district's special programs under one director and program evaluator.

The move was made necessary by the board's recent action eliminating one of the two area directors who formerly handled many of the special projects such as bilingual-bicultural classes, preschool and career education. Supt. Jack Jones said the new department, including an administrative secretary, project writers and clerical help, will be financed entirely by federal and state funds.

The trustees also awarded a contract for the construction of the Lincoln Development Center for the Handicapped to Berry Construction, Inc. of Upland, whose bid of $1,706,990 was low of seven submitted. The contract calls for completion in 370 calendar days. The center will be built at D and Allen streets, Ontario.

The board asked for bids on the demolition of San Antonio School, Ontario, and the moving of its two annex buildings currently housing the Development Center for the Handicapped. One of the annexes will be moved to Hawthorne School, Ontario; the other to the site of the district administration center where it will be used first for storage and later for an enlarged board meeting room.

New City aide in Claremont

Claremont City Manager Norman R. King has announced the appointment of Warren Schaffer to the position of assistant to the city manager beginning July 1.

Schaffer succeeds Mike Uberuaga who resigned April 11 to become assistant city manager of El Monte.

Schaffer, 28, has been administrative analyst for the city of Visalia for the past three years, and obtained internship and administrative experience at Oceanside and Fontana.

He received a bachelor of arts degree in political science and urban studies at UC Riverside and a masters degree in public administration at the UC Riverside graduate school.

King said he believes Schaffer will do an outstanding job both in regard to overseeing the entire employe relations processes of the city as well as assisting in the general administrative responsibilities of the position.

Traffic mishaps hurt child, restaurant wall

A child was injured and the wall of a restaurant bashed in Thursday in separate Pomona traffic accidents.

Two-year-old Timothy Allen Webb suffered abrasions and cuts shortly after 3 p.m. when his left leg and foot were run over by a car while playing in the trailer park where he lives at 1096 E. Mission Blvd. The child was taken to County-USC Medical Center for treatment.

The driver of the car, Bani Gonzalez Rodriguez, 34, who also lives in the trailer park, said the child rode a tricycle from behind a building into the path of the car and the collision was unavoidable.

Late Thursday morning a car driven by Jennie Hernandez Diaz, 66, 726 W. Arrow Hwy., Pomona, went out of control, jumped the center divider of Garey Avenue south of Arrow Highway, jumped the curb and hit the side of the Sizzler restaurant.

The driver, who said the car's steering failed as she turned, escaped injury but the building sustained extensive damage, police

Rowland couple held in pot case

A Rowland Heights couple was arrested late Thursday night by sheriff's deputies who said they found marijuana plants growing in the couple's backyard, marijuana drying on their clothes line and marijuana cigarettes and hashish oil inside their house.

The couple, Albert Von Groneweg, 20, and Mrs. Nancy T. Von Groneweg, 22, were booked on suspicion of the cultivation of marijuana.

Deputies were sent to the Von Groneweg home at 1841 Santa Ysabella Ave. to investigate the report that marijuana was being grown there. They reported finding more than 200 plants, from seedlings to six-footers, growing in the backyard.

Ozone? up in air

Are we in danger of destroying the protective layer of ozone high in the stratosphere that shields earthly life from the sun's harmful ultraviolet radiation? Should we ground all supersonic jets and ban the use of fluorocarbons in spray cans, two sources which some scientists believe threaten future generations with high rates of skin cancer, or worse?

On the basis of the best evidence yet available—nobody knows.

According to two researchers with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), the ozone shield has thinned slightly over some parts of the world in recent years. But this has apparently happened before and no one cause, or causes, can be definitely pinpointed.

Dr. James K. Angell and Julius Korshover of NOAA's Air Resources Laboratories analyzed data from more than 60 stations around the globe using instruments that look upward through the atmosphere and measure the ozone in the entire vertical column.

They found that total ozone levels, which had been increasing throughout most of the northern hemisphere during the 1960s, have turned downward. From 1962 to 1970, most parts of the northern hemisphere, plus the south tropics, had showed increases in ozone varying from 1 per cent in Japan to 8 per cent in European Russia. Western European records showed an increase of even longer duration — 7 per cent between 1955 and 1970.

Then beginning in 1970, nearly all regions of the world underwent a decline of from 1 to 2 per cent. Only in Asiatic Russia and the south tropics was there no change. This recent decline has brought ozone back down almost to its 1963 level in the United States, but not in Great Britain. Moreover, the researchers note, the rate of ozone decrease has been slowing.

Such long-term trends appear to be part of a confusing background of "normal" ozone variations. There seems to be a quasi-biennial oscillation—a rising and falling and rising again over a period of roughly two years.

But these oscillations are by no means uniform, nor do peaks and dips occur simultaneously around the world.

The researchers suggest that the post-1970 decrease in ozone might be related to sunspots and solar flares rather than to any man-induced effects, such as the introduction of chlorine-bearing compounds (fluorocarbons) and nitric oxides.

Here again, however, as with nuclear explosions and volcanic eruptions, two other factors thought to have something to do with ozone depletion, the evidence is contradictory.

The NOAA researchers intend to keep a close watch on seasonal and annual variations in ozone in order to spot any unusual changes "at the earliest possible moment." In the meantime, the rest of us maintain an uneasy watch on the watchers.

We're aiding foreign imports

The most serious challenge to U.S. military security is not Russia's advanced missile program or the threat of another Arab oil embargo at some crucial point.

Rather the major danger to our defense lies in the relative sluggishness in the growth of U.S. technology, on which both industrial and military strength depend.

In the past decade the over-all rate of research and development growth in the United States has been surpassed by France, Germany, Japan and the Soviet Union. The gap is growing.

Our military and industrial research and development, in fact, have declined both in quality and as a percentage of Gross National Product.

We have also been dreadfully slow in putting what R&D we have into our factories.

As a result: some 39 per cent of American industrial facilities are more than 10 years old. Seventeen per cent are at least 20 years old. Another 11 per cent are technologically outmoded.

The problem is not simply that the major foreign industrial nations are increasing their research and development investments at a rapid pace. They are simultaneously building on the technological base we've developed — by purchasing our advanced technology in increasing quantities.

The outright purchase of U.S. discoveries by Japan and West Germany tells the story. Even more startling in scope is the attempt by the Soviet Union to cure its failures in the production of high-technology industrial goods by the purchase of complete ready-to-operate plants in such crucial areas as integrated circuits, computers, computer software, aircraft, jet engines, avionics and specialized instruments.

'Is it over yet?

Dear Editor: I want to share my feelings about Year Round School with you.

My little boy is in kindergarten at Los Serranos School, and my experience with Year Round School is of course limited to his eight months there.

I was not willing to join the vocal group of Chino parents against Year Round School, nor was I prepared even to complete the questionnaire I received regarding my attitudes toward YRS. As a matter of fact, I was more than open to the idea of Year Round School.

I think it's a great idea. In terms of retention, use of facilities, teacher and administrative time, etc., it is just a great idea.

But something has brought me up short. Something that without question overrides, for me, all our grown-up budgets and bureaucracy. It is this:

A freckle-faced five-year-old person, with mud on his boots and chocolate ice cream on his nose, looking up — way far up — at me, a little worried frown on his face, asking, "Mama, is my vacation over yet?" A little frown. A little worry. Five years old.

It hit me then. Dear God, how vital ARE all these adult machinations when stacked up against the wonder, the absolute forever endless wonder of Summer? Do you remember Summer? I do. Can you ever forget that magic day in mid-June when They LET YOU GO, and you could be your own person at last? It WAS forever. It stretched ahead like one long shining surprise — not just at five, but at twelve, and sixteen, and even college students welcome it, long for it, count it their only own place in time and space during the long process of learning.

"Education" comes from a word meaning "to bring forth." In our apprehensive haste to use buildings and people and money to their optimum, is it possible we are missing something so very important, so simple and pure, that at first glance it seems negligible? Is it possible that the forever of summer is vital to the psyche of a growing child?

The pressures our generation has subjected its children to are ominous in their ramifications. Our little ones are timed, guided, graded, and programmed. They hear "don't" and "no" and "hurry" and "careful" from the moment they become aware of themselves as children of the universe. It is these very pressures that thoughtful parents and citizens blame for society's ills, and we try in every way to alleviate them a little for our children.

Could it be that a child's TIME alone with himself and his environment is more important than Year Round School? I dare to believe so. I believe that my little boy should wiggle his toes in the dust without having a frown — "Is it over yet, mama?" I believe it is his God-given right as a child to swim and lie under big trees and look at lizards; to have time to think, to touch things, to relate in his OWN way to God and the world around him without a dread (do you remember it?) on the fringes of his mind, "Is it over yet?"

School can be a lot of things, dear friends, but it can never be Summer.

I ask you to think on this one simple thing.

Darrelle Cavan, Chino.

Jack Anderson

Ford's budget woes

WASHINGTON — President Ford is caught in a dilemma over the budget.

He wants to hold down government spending. Congressional leaders obligingly have offered to slash the defense budget. But the President is fiercely opposed to military cuts.

He also wants to hold down the deficit. But his advisers have urged him to extend the tax rebate for another year. Not only will the economy continue to require stimulation, they have told him, but the Democrats will continue the temporary tax cuts anyway. Therefore, the President may as well take credit for the extension, they suggested.

Meeting secretly with Republican congressional leaders, the President commented that the House budget committee's proposed $72 billion deficit and the Senate committee's $67 billion deficit aren't as bad as he had expected.

"The total figures are more than we wanted," said the President, "but are a lot better than the $100 billion we feared."

"We're ashamed," interjected Rep. Delbert Latta, R.-Ohio, "that the Senate made a better cut than we did." But he insisted that "I don't see how we can bring our $72 billion down to $60 billion."

Ford's goal is to hold the deficit to the $60 billion figure. But Rep. Elford Cederberg, R.-Mich., warned: "We won't even get close to your objective unless we sustain a lot of vetoes. Why should we vote for $60 billion and lose?"

Defense Secretary James Schlesinger objected to the House's proposed $9 billion military cut.

"It's so severe," he protested, "that the world confidence in us goes down even more dangerously. I hope we can resist so damaging a cut."

The President, breaking in, warned that "we're going to make a strong substantive issue about their cuts. I'll go around the country and fight like hell . . . And if anyone wants to join the issue, I'll welcome it."

Budgets bind government

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For all the publicity accorded national affairs, our lives in the Seventies are still most affected by what happens in our cities, counties and states — and by the way they are run.

The education of our children, the protection given or not given by our police, justice or lack of it in our local courts, the quality of sanitation, recreation and most of the rules and regulations which keep our neighborhoods worth living in, are city, county and state matters in the main.

It is therefore of more than passing interest to all of us that New York City is not alone in its horrendous financial problems — though it may be the worst off of the urban invalids and may be the nation's outstanding example of continuous inept leadership.

As badly as we have managed our national budgets and economy, we have done worse in too many of our cities, counties and states. This is because we have regularly failed to elect to local executive and legislative bodies men and women with a sense of fiscal management or responsibility.

We have, further, by federal preemption of the major sources of revenue, left localities with inadequate dependable income. Revenue sharing has been a palliative, not a cure.

The situation is made worse as the decay of our major metropolitan centers, accelerated by a heavy flow of citizens and businesses to the suburbs, degrades existing tax sources.

Yet, wherever we choose to live, a great many of us still work in the cities; we submit to the crime, to the filth, the distortion of values generated by their deterioration.

Nationwide, states and cities will increase taxes, four making small reductions. Twenty-two states are reducing services; two expanding.

Twenty states have delayed some capital projects by one year or more — mainly highway construction. Twenty-three have put into effect complete or limited hiring freezes or abolished jobs completely. Approximately 29,000 positions have been eliminated or left vacant in 15 states.

Fifty-two of 140 communities surveyed reported significant tax increases have been effected or will be required to balance their budgets; five communities are lowering tax rates.

Fifty-six of these same 140 local governments reported significant cuts in services, largely in waste removal, social service programs, fire protection and street maintenance.

Seventy-one of these local governments studied by Ralph Schlosstein and the staff of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee have delayed or canceled the building of schools, fire and police stations, city halls, court houses, street and recreation projects and other construction.

Spending cutbacks, of course, result in layoffs, hiring freezes, reducing work hours. It's estimated by these researchers that almost 40 per cent of the local governments have reduced or limited personnel in the current recession, affecting almost 100,000 jobs, slots and positions.

Moral: Don't spend that federal tax refund too quickly. You may need it to pay increasing state, city and county taxes — unless you live in one of those rare areas which find present income ample to finance its budgets.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

In these days when the average American is confronted with first one food shortage and then another, it is consoling to learn that we are at least going to be able to take the announcements of those shortages with a grain of salt.

In fact, those whose duty it is to keep the American public from panicking are now loudly assuring us that there is enough salt in the great Salt Lake, in Utah, to supply all of this country's needs for the next 90 years.

This announcement has not only brought great joy to the gourmet food seasoners of America but it has also made the day for a lot of young folks who were beginning to wonder how they were ever going to be able to catch birds if they didn't have salt to sprinkle on their tails.

Results of the Tenfoot Poll

It seems that I share with a vast majority of Americans — eight out of ten, according to a recent Tenfoot poll — a sense of confusion over the significance of public opinion surveys being taken on the 1976 presidential race.

A few days ago, for example, I received in the mails a questionnaire asking whether I would support a Reagan-Wallace ticket next year. Never one for political science-fiction, I threw it into the wastepaper basket.

The Mayaguez incident pointed up the problem with all contingency surveys. By most accounts, President Ford gained considerable popularity following his firm handling of that crisis. But how long will such post-Mayaguez euphoria last?

Public opinion experts, of course, will keep taking the pulse of the electorate, but the truth is that these are the worst of times for the pollsters. It's the low point in the valley between national elections.

On one hand, too many months have passed since the 1974 Congressional races to take surveys on questions regarding how people voted last November. With the exception of Sen.-elect Wyman of New Hampshire and Sen.-elect Durkin of New Hampshire and their respective families and friends, who cares about last year's election results?

What people who subscribe to public opinion polls want from the experts is some advance book on how next year's election derby entries are shaping up. But with a year and a half to go before the presidential gate springs open, the results of all such surveys assume what my old colleague, Dr. Arnold Tenfoot, has lately come to describe as "a flaky texture."

Dr. Tenfoot happens to be one of the few pollsters who, back in 1948, did not pick Tom Dewey to defeat Harry Truman (he thought Thurmond would do the job). As a pioneer in the field of in-depth public-opinion sampling, he took on the challenge, following the Mayaguez incident, of probing beneath the surface of polls which use as their premise, "If the Presidential election were held today . . ."

The initial results, to say the least, were provocative. Dr. Tenfoot established that in a two-man race, while 52 per cent of those interviewed would vote for Ford over Kennedy "if the election were held today," the percentages were exactly reversed — Kennedy 52, Ford, 48 — when a follow-up question was asked, based on the election's being held tomorrow.

For all his expertise, the good doctor had no rationale for that shift. Nor for the percentages from a second follow-up question, predicated on the election's being held a week from next Wednesday. That one found Ford and Kennedy in a dead heat.

But Tenfoot is nothing if not persistent. Ever the in-depth interviewer, he tried a third follow-up. A tricky one. "If the election were held 18 months from now and the candidates were President Ford and Sen. Kennedy," he asked 1000 survey subjects, "how would you cast your vote?"

In this instance, the results were stunning. For Ford, 10 per cent; for Kennedy, 10 per cent; with the remaining 80 per cent supplying variations on the same answer, to wit:

Only a damned fool would go around asking people how they were going to vote in an election a year-and-a-half away. And only a bigger one would answer.

Free mail gifts: handle with care

Enclosed is material I received in the mail, advising me that I have been "selected" to receive approximately $500 in benefits for a vacation in Las Vegas — if I kick in $15 for expenses.

I seem to recall something similar to this in your Action Line column but I've forgotten the details.

Is this a legitimate offer or am I on a sucker list? — G. W., Claremont.

The offer made to you by Columbia Research Corp. of Chicago closely parallels one made by Market Development Corp. in 1973 and 1974.

Columbia says you have been selected by computer to receive a vacation for two in Las Vegas. All you have to do is send a personal check or money order for $15 to cover the cost of computer selection and registration of your name, printing the invitation and other material you received, processing your motel reservations, and "other services."

A memo from Roger Blake of Columbia Research states that you may be asked to complete a short research questionnaire or be asked for a testimonial after you've completed the trip.

Market Development Corp. also notified people they had been computer-selected for a vacation for two but gave them a choice of Las Vegas, Disney World or Miami Beach.

Recipients also were to receive a treasure chest filled with household and cosmetic products.

The catch was a requirement of a $15 check or money order "to supplement the cost of registering and guaranteeing confirmation" of the vacation certificate.

It also included "packaging, handling, freight charges and insurance of safe arrival of the treasure chest."

The company was investigated by the Office of the Attorney General of California because it is unlawful to notify a person, as part of an advertising scheme, that he has won a prize, then require him to buy goods or services.

Investigators found many people were not getting the advertised refund when they found the treasure chest unsatisfactory.

Walt Disney Productions said the company's references to Disney World were unauthorized.

Investigation revealed that a land development company sponsored the stay in resort hotels to create an opening to sell property, that advertised sweepstakes did not exist and that names were on rented mailing lists and were not computerized.

Although we wrote about Market Development Corp. several times, valley people kept on sending the company checks for $15 and then asked us to help get their money back when the treasure chest proved to be no treasure. Often it didn't even arrive.

The attorney general's office obtained an injunction against Market Development Corp. The company was ordered to halt activities in this state and to make refunds within three weeks upon request.

When Market Development Corp. kept right on operating, a second suit was filed against the company.

We are uncertain about the technical legality of Columbia Research's offer but we are skeptical.

I ordered two "strip tease" pens, along with other articles, from Hanover House in Pennsylvania.

When my package arrived, the pens weren't included.

I sent a mailgram to Hanover House suggesting that probably an employe kept the pens and should be fired.

Can you break the silence? K. C., Pomona.

Just as we were about to mail a letter to Hanover House to help you get your pens, they arrived.

So far we have resisted your invitation to share the view.

Ann Landers

Sex problem is deep-rooted

Dear Ann Landers: Me write to Ann Landers? Never. But here I am. I don't know what good it will do, but maybe I'll feel better. The problem is my wife. Here's how I'd rate her: Housekeeper—A. Cook A. Economist—A. Lover—C-minus. The reason I don't flunk her completely is because once in awhile she does me a big favor. Usually it's when we return from a party and she's had more than her share of drinks. Then, I'd better be ready or I would never hear the end of it.

Her usual routine goes like this. After supper, in the middle of a TV program, she gets up and says, "I'm tired and I'm going to bed. When you come in, don't bother me." On weekends her best excuses are: (1) your mother may drop in; (2) the kids are due home from the movies; (3) the insurance man, paperboy or milkman is coming to collect: (4) I just had my hair done.

I'm not the type to run around, but I don't know WHAT type I'll be in five years. (I'm 38 now). A word to you chicks who are setting around drying up: If there are enough treats at home, your man won't go out looking for tricks. — Underfed and Looking in Buffalo

Dear Buff: Your letter contained an interesting clue. Booze makes your wife amorous. This means she has inhibitions about sex that undoubtedly go back to her early childhood. I suggest joint counseling. Can't hurt. Might help.

Dear Ann Landers: I must reprimand you for your crude reply to "His Widow." She wrote that her husband died suddenly, leaving her with several children to raise, and no insurance. She said he believed it made better sense to put money in the bank where it would draw interest rather than pay it out in insurance premiums. The woman was very bitter when she learned the bank balance was $5,000. If he had carried life insurance she would have collected over $50,000.

You answered: "Put aside your resentment. In my opinion your husband wasn't inconsiderate, he was ignorant." What a lousy thing to say! The man is dead. He can't defend himself. And YOU call him ignorant! You owe every widow in the world an apology.—Appalled

Dear app: The man WAS ignorant. that's what I said and that's what I meant. True, he's dead, but his widow is alive—and she has four little kids to raise and very little money. Had he known better, he would have carried life insurance.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "The Life of the Party" prompted me to write my first letter to a newspaper.

Your advice was exactly right. I know, because I was once. "The Life of the Party," willing to be the butt of any joke in exchange for attention. It took a shattered marriage to get into therapy. When I discovered the real me, I achieved a sense of personal worth I had never known before.

When I tell friends that my new approach to life is the result of counseling, I get looks of disbelief. "Why would anyone so jolly and outgoing need therapy?" they ask. If they only knew!

Now my friends call ME. I don't chase them. I can be in a group and listen instead of trying to monopolize every conversation and hogging the spotlight. Sign me—Showing Off Less And Enjoying Myself More

Dear Friend: Less IS more. I doff my bonnet to you!

Joe Firman

Drilling is not boring

One of my favorite childhood fantasies was shattered recently by an article in the New Yorker that stated "There is no point in the United States where, if you drilled straight through the earth, you would come out in China." Darn!

In my moppet era, it was common knowledge that if you dug far enough (loved those empty lots!) in building your pirate den, rustlers' hideout or castle dungeon, you would eventually find a little yellow face peering in at you. He would have a pigtail hanging down his back and long fingernails and he would say "Ah, so." Our bubblegum mythology also held that his sister had her feet bound and his father took in laundry. So much for the long, long thoughts of youth.

But the eclectically curious New Yorker interviewed Dr. Bruce Heezen, of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, and ruthlessly shattered the illusion which I have held to this day. Next they'll tell me there is no Santa Claus.

Actually, if you drilled right through the earth from Times Square, New York, you would come out in the middle of the Indian Ocean, which is better than not, I suppose. A street department jackhammer man whose straw boss jokingly told him to "drill till you get to China," would air-hammer his way through 10 inches of pavement, four feet of pipe, 35 feet of the Seventh Avenue subway, 2,200 miles of rock, 3,600 miles of nickel-iron core and 2,200 more miles of rock, finally blub-blub-blubbing his way to the icy surface of the ocean 300 miles off the southwest coast of Australia. Hope he gets overtime.

This is Manhattan's antipodes, the diametrically opposite point on the globe. It's a shortcut, but it's the long way home. Who needs it? For that matter, who needs Manhattan?

Jack Hammer Joe would find the ocean floor completely black, except when some (ugh) luminescent fish happened by, and the water a few degrees above freezing. The ocean floor is covered with a white, squishy substance known as globigerina ooze, which is almost as disgusting as the Seventh Avenue subway. Glob ooze is a calcium sediment made of the shells of globigerina, tiny foraminiferal organisms. What Jack Hammer Joe would make of the tiny foraminiferal organisms, I do not know. What they would make of him is a similarly moot question.

The effect of the Broadway-to-Indian Ocean canal would be interesting. The ocean would drain into Gotham, inundating the tiresome old city with millions of gallons of salt water, hundreds of whales, sharks and foraminiferal organisms, plus Oriental sampans, Chinese junks, American helicopters and my laundry.

The ocean would dry up, stranding thousands of the world's freighters and tankers and Russian submarines. You could plod through the glob ooze from Australia to India or Africa. You might find all sorts of shipwrecks — Spanish galleons, British merchantmen, slave ships. World War I German destroyers, Portuguese man-o-wars. (Men-o-war?) There would be priceless jewels and silverplate from pirate ships sunk and forgotten, and a million empty beer cans jettisoned by American troops during World War II.

All very exciting. I'm not sure that Dr. Heezen's revelations are not better than my childhood dream of digging to China. Maybe Jack Hammer Joe should dig six holes. With six you get egg roll.

Dr. Lamb

'Softage' for healthy colon

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor says that I have diverticulosis. X-rays have been taken. I understand no bulky or seed foods should be eaten. However, lately I have read the opposite is most beneficial, foods like coarse bran, whole tomatoes instead of juice, etc. I would appreciate hearing from you on this matter.

I have had constipation problems since I was a small child, also a great deal of gas.

DEAR READER — There is going to be a lot of confusion about diet and diverticulosis for some time. The diverticula are small pockets of the colon. They are really small hernias of the inner lining of the colon through the muscular wall of the colon.

These small pockets are more apt to form in people like yourself who have had long term constipation or poor bowel habits. In general, any situation that is associated with spasm, cramping, constipation or causes a build up of pressure within the colon is thought to contribute to the small hernias or diverticula.

A lot of the symptoms attributed to diverticula are really from old colon problems that actually preceeded the diverticula.

The older thinking was to give people with colon problems, or almost any disorder of the digestive system, a bland diet. The trouble with this is that the colon will remove all the water from such bland foods and what is left is a small, hard food residue that leads to constipation and poor bowel function. To promote proper function and avoid spasm of the colon you do need bulk in the diet.

Those foods that look like roughage when you eat them are often not roughage at all. The most important one on the basis of recent studies is cereal fiber, found in almost all whole cereals except rice and certainly in abundance in all those breakfast foods labeled as bran or whole wheat products. Real whole wheat bread is another good source of cereal fiber.

THe cereal fiber softens and retains moisture. By retaining moisture in the food residue adequate bulk is maintained and the soft residue is not likely to irritate the colon as does the hard, dry residue of most bland diets.

Some of the pioneers in studying the importance of cereal fiber in the diet point out it should be called "softage" not "roughage."

Not all people do well on a diet that suddenly increases the bulk in the diet. It usually takes three or four weeks to get over the initial increase in gas formation. Along with the change in diet program you would need a good bowel training program.

As a starter for most people I recommend simply switching to whole wheat bread and being sure to eat at least one bowl of bran cereal a day.

Diamonds: South's best friend

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We could save a lot of energy at the bridge table if players would just think about the right things instead of the wrong ones.

Opening lead — Q ♥

South won the heart lead in dummy and promptly lost a spade finesse. West led a second heart. South won, played dummy's jack of spades and then thought about the club suit. How could he play it to avoid the loss of two tricks?

The answer is that with clubs breaking 4-3 and the honors split there was no way for South to play clubs and avoid letting the defense score two club tricks against him. Actually South led dummy's jack. East covered with the king and West was sure of tricks with his queen and nine.

If South had just thought about ways to avoid having to play clubs he would have saved both energy and his contract. All he had to do was to lead a diamond. If the opponent who won led a club South would only lose one club. If he led a third heart as would be likely, South would ruff, lead a diamond and discard one of dummy's clubs.

This would set up a diamond for a discard of another club and while South would have lost two diamond tricks he would not lose even one club.

Woman Achiever

Contest open

Pomona Valley Women, a supplement of the Progress Bulletin highlighting activities of all women's clubs in Pomona Valley, will be published July 22.

Four Women Achievers, selected by a panel of five judges, will be honored in the edition along with all the women who are represented in reviews of the activities of more than 180 women's organizations.

This year will mark the 10th anniversary of the presentation of trophies to Pomona Valley women.

The Women Achievers will be paid tribute for their contributions of time and service to their community at a luncheon later in July. Former honorees will be feted along with the 1975 awardees. The luncheon is open to all Pomona Valley women.

Nomination blanks, mailed last week, must be returned to the Family Section of the Progress Bulletin not later than June 11.

Fact sheets for club inclusion in the annual edition have also been sent to the president or publicity chairman of every club listed with the Family Section. Deadline for return of the club forms is June 25.

Additional Woman Achiever forms for nominating persons may be obtained at the Family Section desk at the Progress Bulletin.

Have meals together

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Because my husband works hard all day at a demanding job he doesn't like having to eat with our three children. He feels he has troubles enough at work without having to listen to their arguments and table discussions. He thinks the fact that he's making a very good income has earned him the privilege of having his three cocktails each night and the right to eat in peace and quiet at 9, or after, if he prefers. — W.H.

Dear W.H.: Being a father is more than being a provider of money. From the tone of your letter, it occurs to me that it might be far better if you, your husband and your family could exchange some of the "very good income" for a little more time. If your husband refuses to allow his children into his life now, he may have many more problems in addition to his work pressures when his children reach the difficult period of adolescence and beyond.

You might suggest to your husband that there be some kind of compromise, perhaps having family meals together three nights a week. For the rest of the week, the two of you might have your cocktails and eat whenever he wished. The point is that mealtime is a time when ideas, as well as food, are shared. This is often the only time families have together and when they can get to know each other. This is extremely important for children because talking and listening provide one of their main ways for outgrowing their ego-centric selfhood and identifying with others.

In his book, "Love Against Hate," Karl Menninger points out that love and understanding is strengthened in the family through the shared experience of eating together. He cites six unifying experiences in addition to the sexual union, eating together, giving and receiving gifts and help, talking, listening, working together and playing together. These experiences encourage and foster the individual's ability to identiy with others.

Being given food is one of the first experiences of life and it is the first expression of love that a child understands. In the unconscious mind, many of us never lose the association of food with love. This is why the sharing of food is considered so important in almost all cultures.

If a parent is to know and understand his children at all, he cannot simply dismiss their problems and troubles, no matter how insignificant they may seem. Arguments and discussions are part of communication. This is the way families learn to relate and empathize with each other. Once the child feels alienated and thinks no one in his family is interested in his problems, he will look elsewhere for help and understanding. The youngster who feels that communication is too difficult and impossible may turn to drugs as a way out of his emotional problems.

Even if your family argues every time they sit down together at the table, it is preferable to their never dining together. Your husband should realize that it is important for his children to learn to express their feelings even if they are angry feelings, and even if they result in arguments. Those who are encouraged to express their anger in words are much less apt to resort to the use of physical force. It is the child who cannot express himself and his feelings who is in trouble and is apt to be destructive.

Your children need their father and they have a right to expect at least one hour of his time each day.

WHAT HANDICAPS? — Danny O'Hara (left) of Hayward, Thursday completed a trip by wheelchair to which he is confined, from Hayward to Sacramento where he was greeted by his Assemblyman, Bill Lockyer. O'Hara was mugged last year and suffered a head injury which damaged his sense of balance. Taking back roads lengthened the 100-mile trip to 163 miles. He said he made the trip to publicize everyday problems faced by the handicapped. Meanwhile, paraplegic schoolteacher John Robertson, 24, (right), said at his Scottsdale, Ariz., home that he plans to swim the English channel this summer. He was paralyzed from the waist down in a 1969 auto crash. The elementary school teacher said handicapped persons must realize their limitations but challenge them continually.

Saigon today; no more frills

SAIGON (AP) — Regimentation and austerity are taking hold in South Vietnam. A new society is being shaped by Communist leaders. North Vietnamese arrive daily and their presence has become highly visible.

The enemy no longer is an American, but a way of life the Communists say was left behind when the United States pulled out on April 29.

Youths marched down Tu Do Street the other day condemning American music and a "decadent culture" they claimed was instilled by the Americans.

The remaking of South Vietnam 1975 is ostensibly carried out by the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) — what people used to call the Viet Cong — but its ranks are dwindled by the North Vietnamese.

There is a daily Southward stream by sea and air of North Vietnamese labor officials, troops, technicians, even artists.

The American-era lifestyle of the 3.5 million Saigonese is rapidly ending, as the North Vietnamese tighten their hold.

One public incident had political overtones. Last Tuesday evening, a Vietnamese man planted small North Vietnamese and Viet Cong flags in the debris of a war memorial statue, poured gasoline on himself and set himself afire in full view of hundreds of Saigonese in a park facing the National Assembly.

North Vietnamese troops recovered a pile of letters from the man, but their contents were never disclosed, and his motive was not made public.

(Suicide by self-immolation is a traditional Buddhist method of protest in Vietnam.)

The PRG is said to lack the manpower and the civil structure to manage Saigon, which is the size of Boston. It has summoned civil servants, such as technicians and airport personnel, from the old regime to reman their posts. While the North Vietnamese forces are clearly visible, the Viet Cong are in low profile.

Nearly a month after the takeover, there is still no civilian government in Saigon and the ruling authority is the Military Management Committee headed by Hanoi-trained Lt. Gen. Tran Van Tra, a Southerner and field commander, who directed the 1968 Tet offensive and the 1972 Easter offensives in the Saigon region.

The regime has kept the banks closed, draining cash, and in this way forcing an exodus from urban centers to the countryside. Bars and nightclubs are closed and Western movies are banned. Properties left by Vietnamese who fled to the United States are being confiscated, as well as American products. North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are moving into hotels and households.

The new government has banned all political parties. Precinct committees are indoctrinating householders, controlling the distribution of rice and the management of real estate.

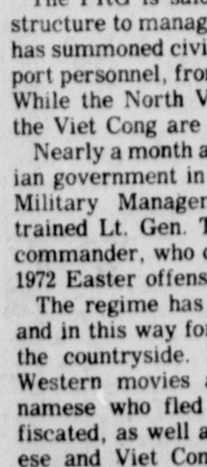

Thieves are shot on the spot in Saigon, or put on display in the market places to be tried by people's courts.

A young boy in tears was marched all the way down Nguyen Hue Street by North Vietnamese soldiers after allegedly committing a crime. He was not harmed, but shamed.

Communist authorities have acknowledged that crime has been one of its biggest problems since the takeover on April 30.

Occasional bursts of gunfire can be heard in the city and military patrols have increased.

Field reports say there is still some minor fighting in areas north and east of Saigon, where some South Vietnamese troops are reported to be still dug in, refusing to surrender. This could not be officially confirmed. Scores of weapons have been reported confiscated.

French school

'Permissive' not in text

By HAROLD SHEEHAN

SAINT GERMAIN, France — (NEA) — Whenever I venture to look inside my son's mathematics book my eyes glaze over and I slip into a time tunnel back to Mr. Billings' geometry class nearly 30 years ago. But that textbook I used then was as simple as a connect-the-dots puzzle compared to the one in front of me now.

Not because this is the New math. It's not even the Old math. It is French math — in French, naturally — which tumbles together geometry, sets, algebra, fractions, square roots and non-ending decimal phenomena. The emphasis is not on your solutions but the way you think out the problems.

At a time when many disillusioned Americans are reexamining their so-called "permissive" educational system, the experience of my son Jim may throw some light onto the national debate.

Jim 14, a product of stateside schools, now gets a heavy dosage of dawn-to-dusk French public education along with 200 other American high school youths. He attends the unique Lycee International (pronounced lee-say), situated in this subprefecture of 50,000 in the western suburbs of Paris. Another 100 American children attend the adjoining lower grades.

The Lycee was set up for both French children and those of the large, international community — mostly business and diplomatic corps — which has heavily colonized the region.

More than 40 per cent of the 2,400 Lycee students are enrolled in special national sections. These give basic, nationally-oriented courses on top of regular French studies. For example, Jim takes history and English in addition to his French courses, such as mathematics, French history, chemistry, natural science. The idea is to provide continuity for eventual return to high school or a university in the mother country.

There are eight such national sections, the largest being German, British, American and Dutch, in order of size. Then Swedish, Danish, Italian and Portuguese.

The French number their grades in reverse. You start in the twelfth and graduate from the first. Jim is in the fourth class. The school is free, except for a charge of about $370 a year for enrollment in the national section courses. A distinct financial advantage lies in the chance to attend supplementary year, called the classe terminale, which usually permits direct entry into the second year of an American college, with a saving of several thousand dollars in tuition and other costs.

Emphasis is on meat-and-potatoes courses, meaning languages, math and science in large scoops. In addition to nine hours of French language weekly, Jim must take a second living language. He chose German.

Of a total of his 35 class hours, 29 are in French, including homework, oral and written exams. Most students are effectively fluent after the first two trimesters, thanks to the accelerated French course for new students.

A heavy homework load extends the eight-hour daily schedule by another two or more hours, leaving little time for those traditional cornerstones of conventional American education: sports, clubs and dances. Furthermore, the student population is widely dispersed, with the school buses serving more than 60 surrounding towns and villages. In addition, the winter days are short. Paris, while enjoying a mild winter climate, is on the same latitude as Gander, Newfoundland. Student theatrical productions usually take the form of one play or musical each year, such as "Cabaret" or "The Devil and Daniel Webster."

Student social life tends to be spontaneous and privately organized, with the accent on home parties, swimming or ice skating dates.

The other weekend about 16 of Jim's schoolmates were dancing in our living room while Chuck Berry was peeling the paper off the walls. A quick nationality check revealed French, Dutch, Swedish, Brazilian, in addition to American.

There are other compensations for a teen-ager. Paris is only a few minutes away by a fast and cheap commuter line, which means weekends at the Flea Market, movies and other attractions which abound.

At the end of each trimester all new students undergo a ritual called the "conseil de classe," in which he or she enters alone into a room surrounded by the teachers and facing the school principal, Edgar Scherer, the guiding force in building up the school to what it is today, who is always addressed as "Monsieur le Proviseur." the instructors and Le Proviseur then proceed to tell you what you have done right or wrong over the past few weeks and ask what you plan to do about it. The whole experience, conducted entirely in French, can create a great deal of sweat.

The student's day-to-day progress is recorded like a fever chart, with the most severe penalties for "stupid" mistakes. The "bulletin trimestriel" — report card — is mailed directly to the parents, with detailed observations noted for each course.

Only one in three applications to the Lycee is accepted. "The chief reason for rejection in these upper grades is, surprisingly, not linguistic deficiency, but past problems in mathematics," according to David Graham, director of the American section. "Problems in math coupled with the need to cope in a new language can spell scholastic disaster. If the student is then dropped it can harm the individual psychologically throughout the rest of his education and we don't want to put him in that position."

The French gastronomic tradition carries over to the school lunch, which costs about $5 a week. It is a sit-down affair, eight places per table, with individually served five-course meals, as prescribed by law for every student in the country.

Although the administration is permissive about personal tastes, serious infractions are harshly corrected. A few weeks ago three students in the fifth class (eighth grade, U.S.) were expelled for vandalism and for petty theft from their classmates, a judgment given wide publicity among all parents.

Life at the Lycee is unquestionably not easy, but the dividends, in terms of preparedness for an internationally-oriented society and a demanding world, seem worth the effort.

(Former NEA editor Harold Sheehan has been living in France for several years, where he is a public relations executive. His son, James, formerly attended schools in suburban Cleveland, Ohio.)

NO TIME FOR BASKETBALL — Ohio teen Jim Sheehan [seated center] has little time for stateside basketball while attending the International Lycee in a Paris suburb.

Steve Prefontaine

Auto wreck kills Prefontaine

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Steve Prefontaine, America's best distance running hope for the 1976 Olympics and one of this country's most controversial amateur athletes, died early today in a one-car automobile accident here. He was 24.

Prefontaine, holder of every American distance record above 2,000 meters, was pinned under his car when it hit a rock wall at about 12:30 a.m. PDT, Eugene police said.

A few hours earlier he had run the second fastest 5,000 meters in American history at the National Collegiate Athletic Association preparation meet in Eugene.

A native of Coos Bay, Ore., Prefontaine was a graduate of the University of Oregon and ran for the Oregon Track Club. He was a member of the U.S. Olympic team in Munich in 1972.

Prefontaine, who trained hard, was often bitter over the treatment received by amateur athletes in this country. Two months ago, asked about running as an amateur for his country, he said:

"To hell with love of country, I compete for myself."

In recent weeks Prefontaine had expressed pleasure with his conditioning as he approached the NCAA meet. "I'm strong and my fitness is coming along at a very fast pace," he said. "I'm extremely happy with my conditioning."

Prefontaine, who ran distances from 2,000 meters to 10,000 meters, just missed winning a bronze medal at Munich, despite being spiked and shoved during a critical race. Not winning a medal when he had been expected to was a major disappointment for him.

For the past several months, Prefontaine had been in training, trying to decide whether he should compete in the 1976 Olympics.

"People say I should be running for a gold medal for the old red, white and blue and all that bull, but it's not going to be that way," he said. "I'm the one who has made all the sacrifices. Those are MY American records, not the country's."

The 1974 graduate of Oregon said if he decided to compete at Montreal next summer, "I'll be a poor man. If you're not a millionaire, there's no way."

He said he was not bitter, just "outraged. American athletes, expecially distance runners, are at a big disadvantage against the rest of the world. We're expected to live by all the rules, like not being able to coach, but still train and make our own living."

Prefontaine held six American distance records, in the two-mile, three-mile, six-mile, 3,000 meters, 5,000 meters and 10,000 meters and he held the collegiate records in all those categories except for the three-mile run.

His running career stretched back nearly a decade, and he had been setting records for four years.

For instance, he tied the collegiate two-mile record of 8:33.1 in Eugene, the town near which he died, on March 21, 1971. He was later to cut 15 seconds off that record, breaking it several times.

In July 1971, at Berkeley, Calif., he set the American record in the 5,000 meters with a time of 13:30.4, a record he was to later cut by more than eight seconds.

Still, he was not interested in running for his country, nor in turning pro where he could make money.

He said he would change his citizenship tomorrow if given the chance, describing himself as an "internationalist."

"Being a success in business, making some money, is the most important aspect of my life now," he said two months ago. But as for pro track, he said, "I don't think they can offer me the kind of challenge I need to get ahead."

Jack Maloof can't advance

It's not big news anymore when La Verne College's baseball team travels to the NAIA World Series in St. Joseph, Mo.

By now, the rabid Leopard fans are used to it. The World Series is even printed on the Leos' schedule cards as if it is a part of the regular season.

There is no question Coach Ben Hines has built a dynasty.

When La Verne takes the field against North Carolina Wilmington Saturday evening, it will be their fourth appearance in the World Series.

The Leos placed second to William Carey (Mo.) in 1969, won the whole thing in 1972 and took third last year. The 1969 and 1974 World Series were also in St. Joseph while the 1972 finals was in Phoenix.

One of the stars on that 1969 club was leftfielder Jack Maloof, who developed at Charter Oak High and Mt. San Antonio College.

Maloof, who hit .396 for the '69 Leos, is the subject of a feature article in the current edition of The Sporting News.

The article, written by Chris Polkowski in Orlando, Fla., is about why Maloof hasn't advanced above the Class AA level in the Minnesota Twins' organization.

This is Maloof's third season playing for Orlando in the Southern League. According to our latest Player Periscope, he is hitting .357. In his previous two seasons, Maloof hit .278 and .300.

Gets on base

Maloof was all ready to move up to AAA ranks at Tacoma, Wash. this season and was shocked to learn the Twins had different ideas.

"After the year I had in 1974, I figured there was no way I'd be coming back to Orlando for a third season," he said. "I wish I was with an organization which would respect my style of play. It seems like all they want are people who hit the ball out of the park."

Maloof's biggest strike against him is lack of power. He didn't hit a home run last year and has one this season.

"I'm a contact higger, and my game is to get on base," he continued. "I'm not trying to fool anybody by swining for the fences. My main concern is getting on base. I got 127 hits last year and walked more than anyone else in the league — 105 times."

One of Maloof's teammates at Orlando is outfielder Willie Norwood, a big slugger on the 1972 national champions at La Verne. In his second season at Orlando, Norwood is hitting only .235 with one homer.

Another Pomona area product is doing well in the minor leagues.

Former Ganesha High star Randy Stein is only one step away for the big leagues in pitching for Rochester in the Class AAA International League in the Baltimore organization.

After a slow start this season, Stein showed his promise by coming within two outs of a no-hitter in a 4-2 win over Pawtucket.

Stein also helped his own cause by driving in what proved to be the winning run.

APC's Reed goes to 76ers

Azusa Pacific's Rick Reed was a 10th round selection by the Philadelphia 76ers in Thursday's NBA draft.

Reed, a 6-2 guard, averaged 25.6 points per game and made All-District in 1974. He was ruled to have used up his eligibility and appeared in only a few games last season when he contested the ruling in the courts.

Reed came to APC from San Diego City College.

NBA's No. 1 draftee waits for best offer

NEW YORK (AP) — David Thompson, with an opportunity to sign one of the most lucrative contracts in pro basketball history, says he plans to wait until next month's American Basketball Association draft before choosing between the ABA and the National Basketball Association.

Until then, the Atlanta Hawks, who made the exhilirating Thompson the No. 1 pick in the ABA draft Thursday, probably will not decide how much to offer their two other outstanding selections, Marvin Webster and Bill Willoughby.

"It's a great thrill to be the first player picked, and as to where my future lies, I have to wait until the ABA and then weigh all matters as to what team or league I'll be playing in," Thompson said following his selection by the Hawks. "I'm happy that Atlanta drafted me, but I just enjoy basketball and will be happy playing anywhere."

The Hawks likely will be battling the ABA's Denver Nuggets for Thompson's services. The Nuggets have the ABA's No. 1 pick and they already have been openly courting the three-time All-American and two-time Player of the Year, apparently having made some tempting cash overtures.

The agile 6-foot-4 star from North Carolina State spent several days with the Nuggets late in the ABA season.

"David seemed to like our organization and I think he has reached a pretty good understanding," said Nuggets' forward Bobby Jones. "Of course, I don't want to say anything that would hamper the deal...I'd say Denver is fairly close, but strange things happen when a player is negotiating."

Atlanta, meanwhile, is in a precarious position because of its financial woes, although owner John Wilcox expressed confidence that the Hawks could afford to sign Thompson, Webster and Willoughby.

"I would not have drafted them if I didn't think I could sign them," Wilcox said. "I don't see any problems at all."

The problems, if any, could be solved by Wilcox selling the team to more financially stable owners, or as has been speculated, the Hawks trading Webster and Willoughby to the New York Knicks for forward Phil Jackson and $1 million.

The latter deal, of course, would provide the Hawks with sufficient money to afford Thompson.

At present, however, they have the luxury of all three players.

The 7-0 Webster, a two-time College Division All-America and twice winner of the College Division Player of the Year known as "The Human Eraser," was the Hawks' second pick on the first round and the third player selected over-all in the draft.

Willoughby, a 6-8 forward who averaged 35 points and 22 rebounds per game last season at Dwight Morrow High School in Englewood, N.J., was the first player chosen on the second round.

"I'm looking for a good contract," said the 18-year-old Willoughby. "I hope they have enough to pay me after they get done with Thompson and Webster."

HAPPY BUT UNDECIDED

David Thompson, N.C. State All-American, smiles when informed he is the first player selected in the NBA draft. Thompson, a 6-4 forward, was selected by the Atlanta Hawks but says he'll make no decision until after the ABA draft.

New surroundings for some Angels?

ANAHEIM (AP) — Manager Dick Williams says there's nothing jinx-like about his California Angels losing 10 games in a row at home to one team.

But he adds some of his players might be inspecting new surroundings if the losing continues.

The Angels, with hard-throwing Nolan Ryan being hit for two home runs, lost to Cleveland 9-3 Wednesday night as the Indians swept a three-game series and won their 10th straight here over three years.

"I don't know anything about the streak, however it's an entirely different team this year so I don't think it's got anything to do with it," Williams said.

The matter is simply, "We haven't been playing good ball."

Williams added, "We might be a little tight so we gave the players the day off Thursday since there wasn't a game. Instead of coming in and working out they could spent the day with their families or go golfing.

"We should be all business when we come back Friday night."

The Angels open a three-game series with Baltimore tonight with Ed Figueroa facing Jim Palmer of the Orioles.

Williams warned the team that there would be some changes if play doesn't improve.

"If it continues this way," the manager said, "we're definitely going to make some changes."

He said the changes could come from the Angel farm system or the team might look for a trade.

The Angels Thursday called up relief pitcher Dave Sells, who led the team in saves in 1973, from Salt Lake City. It wasn't immediately decided who would be dropped from the roster to make room for the right-hander.

In another move Williams announced Ryan, who went seven innings Wednesday night, would pitch against the Orioles Sunday.

"He can come back after three days rest and pitch the fourth," Williams said. "Since we're off Monday otherwise he'd have five days and come back on the sixth."

Valley athletes in Masters Meet

By KEVIN CLOE
PB Staff Writer

NORWALK — A grand total of 14 valley athletes plus four relay teams will try to extend their 1975 track season one more week tonight at Cerritos College.

The eight girls, six boys, three girls relays teams and one boys relay team will be competing in the CIF Masters Meet beginning at 7:15 p.m.

The top five individuals in both the boys and girls events in the Masters Meet, which is a combination of all four divisions in the CIF Southern Section, will qualify for the State Meet to be held in San Diego's Balboa Stadium on June 6-7.

Pacing the valley entrants in the boys competition will be CIF 3-A long jump champion Stanley Webster of Garey High and the CIF 2-A mile relay champion Ontario High quartet of John Newsome, Elijah Bishop, John Skeete and Gil McCroey.

Webster, whose best jump this year stands at 24 feet, 9 inches, won the 3-A title last weekend by clearing 22 feet even at El Modena High. Since the El Modena long jump runway was a little out of the ordinary, Stan figures to do much better tonight.

The Ontario relay team coasted to an easy victory in a time of 3:22.6 at the 2-A finals last weekend. But the Jaguars may be without one of the foursome tonight. Skeete, due to religious convictions, will probably not compete. His probable replacement will be Nolen Diggs.

Other boys who will be competing in the Masters Meet will be Pomona hurdler Dwayne Jackson, Ganesha hurdler Lloyd Jones, Pomona long jumper Arthur Hodges, Pomona shot putter Hank Zibell, and Ontario long jumper Marcus Jennings.

Leading the valley's girls competitors will be Claremont High's Jenny Stary. She qualified from last weekend prelims at Claremont Men's College in the high jump at 5-0 and the long jump at 17-5¾.

Other area gals who will be competing tonight include Ontario's Renee Carter in the 220 and the Jags' 880 medley relay team, Upland's Linda Hightower in the 440, Ontario's Donna Fromme in the 440 and the Jags' 880 medley relay team, San Dimas' Martha Diaz in the mile, Upland's Cornelia (Corny) Sonnenburg in the 80 hurdles, Chino's Sherri Morris in the high jump, and Ontario Christian's Angela Wind in the high jump.

Miss Sonnenburg and Miss Morris were leading qualifiers in their events at the prelims. Corny won the hurdle event in 11.1 seconds, while Sherri claimed the top high jump mark at five feet, two inches.

The three girls relay teams involved include Chaffey's 440 quartet, Ontario's 880 medley team, and Claremont's 880 medley foursome.

The four Chaffey girls include Robin Crappa, Sue Farrar, Neva Bedford and Tanya Bowie. The Ontario team includes Miss Carter, Annette Garner, Gilda Walker and Miss Fromme. Claremont's foursome includes Staci Johnson, Terri and Kathy Ryan, and Miss Stary.

The girls' long jump, high jump and shot put begins at 6:15 p.m., while the boys' pole vault gets underway at 6:30 p.m.

The first running event is scheduled for 7:15 p.m.

Leo slugger set sights on .400

Batting average soars to .441

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

Dan Graham realizes he isn't likely to average .600 in the NAIA World Series when La Verne begins play Saturday. But the husky third baseman fully expects to maintain a .400 pace.

The Leos cleanup hitter doesn't go around telling you what he's going to do. But if asked, he'll tell you what he expects to do. Graham is quietly confident his big bat will continue to smoke.

His own history backs him up. In his freshman year at Mesa Junior College in Arizona, he batted .444 and set a tournament record of four home runs in four games as Mesa finished third in the JC World Series played at Grand Junction, Colo. (California JCs do not compete outside the state).

After an excellent .380 season and a respectable six home runs, Graham has knocked the cover off the ball since La Verne started playoff competition.

He set some kind of District III record when he cracked four home runs on six pitches his first four at-bats in the Leos' first game. He went on to average a sizzling .619 in the five games with 14 runs batted in and 10 scored.

At Portland last week, Graham went 9-for-17 (.529) with five homers, 15 RBIs in four games. He also scored six more runs.

So in nine District and Area Playoff games, he has 22 hits in 38 at-bats for a .579 average. He has hit nine home runs, batted in 29 runs and scored 16.

His overall average has soared from .380 to .441.

"I didn't expect to hit over .600 or .500 in any particular series," Graham said. "But I did expect to average over .400 for the whole year."

You have to wonder what the Leopards' slugger might have done if he hadn't broken his hand diving for an infield pop up in the very first game of the season. That happened in the first game of a doubleheader with UC Riverside. But Graham played BOTH games and got hits in each, then was sidelined three weeks.

"I struggled for about a month when I came back," Graham recalled. "It was pretty much wasted. I think it was just a matter of timing. The hand never bothered me. It was never sore and never swelled up again. After about two weeks it felt strong."

Graham hand't been back in the lineup long when he was hit near the eye by a teammate's flying bat during practice. The impact fractured the zygomatic arch and caused a cut requring 13 stitches.

Maddox refuses to gloat after Yanks beat Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — New York's Elliott Maddox just circled the Yankees' dressing room for 10 minutes and grinned Thursday night.

He had struck a mortal blow in his running feud with Texas Rangers' Manager Billy Martin but refused to gloat.

Maddox slammed four hits, collected four RBI and delivered a game-winning two-run double in the ninth inning Thursday night to give the Yankees a 7-5 victory over the Rangers, who gave up on him a year ago.

Maddox was embroiled in a beanball controversy with Martin in spring training and it carried over into the regular season last week when Texas visited New York City. Maddox was knocked down and claimed that was done on Martin's orders.

Maddox was asked how it felt to gain a measure of revenge on Martin and the Rangers?

"It's always nice to come back and haunt a team that gave up on you," he said. "I think the bean ball thing is over...I hope so."

The New York center fielder, whom Rangers' management claimed could neither field nor hit before he was traded, went into the game with one hit for his last 20 times at bat.

"The team made fun of me in the locker room Wednesday night after we beat Kansas City and I just had to laugh," Maddox said. "The irony of the entire thing is that I broke out of the slump against the Rangers.

"I hit two line drives right at somebody, was robbed on two other balls and had a line drive bounce off the pitching rubber right into the second baseman's hands against Kansas City. I was really getting frustrated. I just had to get a hit for a change."

It was the eighth victory in the last 11 games for the streaking Yankees and the sixth loss in a row for the sagging Rangers.

Maddox opened his evening with a triple to score Bobby Bonds, followed with two singles after a groundout, and slashed the clutch double to score Sandy Alomar and Bonds.

Starters Pat Dobson of the Yanks and Clyde Wright of the Rangers were shelled and Dick Tidrow picked up the mound victory in relief. Rookie Jim Umbarger was saddled with the loss.

Yankees' Manager Bill Virdon said, "We knew Maddox could play center field when we got him from the Rangers. He was an unknown quality offensively because he never got to play much. If he can just hit .250—or hit like he did tonight— it will mean big things for this team.

"It's funny how the players you trade always come back to haunt you."

Maddox admitted he got a few needles from the Rangers during the game but added, "You don't mind that so much when you are on base. I don't mind that at all."

He then whipped out some tooth paste and brushed his teeth...and grinned a lot.

Knicks sign McGinnis, ABA superstar, to pact

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association have signed American Basketball Association superstar George McGinnis to a multi-million dollar contract, The Associated Press learned today.

Published reports said the contract would be for $2 million and would cover six years.

The AP learned the Knicks had signed the 6-foot-8, 235-pound McGinnis—star of the ABA's Indiana Pacers—and were prepared to fight whatever legal battles were necessary to keep the 24-year-old player on their roster.

The Knicks called what they described as a major news conference for later in the day, following a hearing scheduled before U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Carter.

That hearing was on a suit McGinnis has filed against the NBA, challenging, among other things, the legality of the league's player draft. The Philadelphia 76ers own the NBA rights to McGinnis and have been unwilling to make a trade with the Knicks for them.

Sutton faces Cubs; looks for more hitting

CHICAGO (AP) — Don Sutton was to take the mound for the Los Angeles Dodgers today, and he was probably hoping he'd get a bit more hitting support against Chicago than he did the last time he faced the Cubs.

Sutton, 8-3, was to face either Ray Burris, 5-3, or Steve Stone, 5-0. In either case the name doesn't sound as imposing as Bill Bonham.

Bonham was the fellow who was on the mound for the Cubs one week ago Tuesday at Dodger Stadium. That evening he limited Los Angeles to just two hits—a single by Ron Cey and Lee Lacy's solo home run—as the Cubs beat a fine performance by Sutton 2-1.

Sutton pitched a complete game, gave up just five hits, walked two and struck out 11 yet lost his third game. He subsequently beat St. Louis 7-3 last Sunday.

The Dodgers, leading the National League West by 1½ games over Cincinnati, will start Andy Messersmith, 7-1, against Rick Reuschel, 3-5, in a Saturday game and then former Cub Burt Hooton, 3-4, will work Sunday for the Dodgers against Bonham, the onetime star at UCLA who is now 4-4.

Ali will star in a film about his life

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, here for tonight's exhibition bout against Jimmy Ellis, says filming will begin this October of a movie of his life.

The movie, in which Ali will play himself, is to be directed by Tom Creis, who is also in Louisville. Creis said Thursday some of the scenes will be shot in Louisville, Ali's home town.

Producer John Marshall said the movie has a budget of $2.7 million, and he hopes it will be released next summer.

"What we want to show," Marshall said, "is that all of this—the poetry, the clowning— is a put-on designed to sell tickets. He is, whether you like him or not, one of the most important men in America—and has been since the '60s."

Ailing coach comes home with track and field team

TOKYO (AP) — Ailing Bob Giegengack was transfered in a wheel chair from a Chinese to an American airliner in Tokyo Friday as the U.S. track and field team flew home after a two-week tour of the People's Republic of China.

He was much improved.

The 68-year-old former Yale University coach awakened Friday morning in Peking, feverish and shaking, two hours before the team was to start home.

Dr. Tony Daly of Los Angeles, the team physician, treated him on the spot and then sent him to a Peking hospital in the care of another physician on the team, Dr. Harmon Brown of Palo Alto, Calif.

At the hospital, Chinese doctors made tests and suggested that Giegengack remain there for treatment.

Wells, Bell combine to one-hit San Dimas

Allan Wells and Todd Bell combined to hurl a one-hitter Thursday night as Pomona Post 30 romped past San Dimas, 11-1, in American Legion baseball action.

Pomona scored all its runs in the first five innings on the strength of a three-run homer by Kevin Schmicking and a four-for-five performance by Chris Davis which was good for two runs batted in.

Wells gave up the only San Dimas hit — a single — to Dave Enos with two out in the first inning. He struck out five in four innings of work.

After entering the game as a pinch hitter in the bottom of the fourth, Bell took over the mound for the final five innings. He limited San Dimas to a walk and no hits for that span, striking out eight, to pick up the victory in his first decision of the season.

Already leading 3-1, Pomona scored four times in the fourth inning on singles by Wells and Keith Glover, a walk to Robbie Franklin and Schmicking's home run.

Four more runs in the fifth iced the cake.

Post 30 (4-7) will host La Puente at Ralph Welch Park tonight at 8 p.m.

All-Star dilemma: play Rose where?

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose's switch to third base has made things happen for the streaking Cincinnati Reds, but he may be a man without a position in the All-Star game.

Because of the move, the eight-time All-Star game selection finds himself vulnerable in voting.

Rose believes that because fans see him in a new position, they might not vote for him at all.

"I can't worry about that," says Rose, who led National League outfielders with a .997 fielding average. "All I'm worrying about is handling third base."

He was second only to Atlanta's Henry Aaron in the balloting for outfielders last year. But he's now dueling Ron Cey, the Los Angeles Dodgers third baseman, who was the top votegetter at his position last year.

Manager Sparky Anderson thinks there's reason for concern.

"Los Angeles is going to be tough to beat out because of their population. They'll flood the ballot box," he said.

Rose, whose batting average has dipped below .300 since the switch, said the issue may be decided by write-in votes.

If not, he's hopeful the All Star Game coaches will pick him as an at-large choice.

"It doesn't really matter how you make it," said Anderson. "They'll count all the votes no matter what the position."

Rose is listed as an outfielder on the ballots. Starters for the National and American Leagues are decided by fan votes.

The Reds have shaken off early-season lethargy by winning 14 of 20 games since Rose, who broke in as an infielder, became a fixture at third.

Cincinnati, currently on a seven-game winning streak, has moved to within 1½ games of the front-running Dodgers by compiling an 18-5 record at home.

Rose, one of three Reds to draw two million votes last year, has only one error at third base and is off to one of his best RBI starts with 23.

But the 34-year-old Reds captain, who has a lifetime batting average of .309, has had his troubles in the All-Star Game.

He's 1-for-12 in seven appearances for a .083 batting average.

The All-Star game is July 15 in Milwaukee.

South has size in cage classic

By KEVIN CLOE
PB Staff Writer

Once again, the South seems to be the favorite to capture the Pomona Valley High School Basketball Classic.

Head Coach Mike Wells of Garey High has chosen a squad which possesses a lot of height — same as last year when head Coach Frank Elder's South club had a distinct height advantage.

But North head Coach Jeff McCall has scraped up a team which claims a lot of quickness — also the same as last year.

The result last year was an exciting 104-102 triumph for the South.

Both coaches anticipate the same kind of result from this year's classic, which will be held Tuesday, June 17 at Claremont High (8 p.m.).

"I hope this year's game is two-thirds as exciting as last year's game," McCall said Thursday afternoon at a special luncheon held for the players. "The North has a definite disadvantage in height, but I figure the game will turn out the same as last year. It'll be height against good shooting. I hope we can use our outstanding shooting ability."

The North roster includes three players at 6-foor-4, while the South claims six players at that height or taller.

"Basically, I feel the same as Jeff," Wells admitted. "I think it's going to be an interesting game. I'm convinced on quickness. In the four years I've been at Garey, we've been super quick. I'll admit, they (the North) have the advantage there. We'll just have to be more aggressive."

The big men on the South squad include 6-9 center Dirk Story of Chino High, 6-7 center Steve Nichols of Rowland High, 6-7 forward Dan Pearce of Ontario High, 6-5 forward Del McDonald of Garey High, 6-4 center Brian Jacobs of Chaffey High and 6-4 forward Mike Coppess of Chino High.

The quick and good shooting guards on the North squad include Harold Drake of Bonita High, Roger Gubichuk of Alta Loma High, Roosevelt Morris of Charter Oak High, John Pignotti of Damien High, and Danny Wilson of Pomona High.

Those guys will probably play the biggest roles in the outcome of the second annual event, which is being sponsored by the La Verne Rotary Club.

The Rotary held the special luncheon Thursdsay in order for the players to get together for the first time.

While at the luncheon, the two 12-man squads unveiled their plans for college. The North graduates had these plans for college:

Steve Brahs of San Dimas (Whittier College); Drake (La Verne College); Dave Duncan of Upland (Northwest Christian in Eugene, Ore.); Tom Erbstoesser of Alta Loma (Chaffey College); Gubichuk (Cal Poly, Pomona); Brian Harrison of Charter Oak (Stanford); Cornell Kasbergen of Damien (Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo); Morris (Dartmouth); Pignotti (Claremont Men's College); Mike Toomay of Claremont (Monterey Peninsula Junior College); Wilson (San Jose St.); and Scott Woodland of Royal Oak (undecided).

The South graduates' plans include:

Donald Barnes of Ganesha (Cal State Los Angeles); Coppess (Chaffey College); Ralph Dudley of Ganesha (Whittier College); Billy Evans of Garey (USIU); Jacobs (Chaffey College); Cliff Manning of Walnut (MSAC); McDonald (Wyoming); Mike Medeiros of Montclair (Chaffey College); Nichols (MSAC); Pearce (Ricks Junior College in Idaho); Story (Redlands), Tom Thompson of Walnut (MSAC).

Reds sign Taiwan players

CINCINNATI (AP) — Little League baseball is proving to be a showcase for professional hopefuls from Taiwan.

Cincinnati Reds President Bob Howsam says it was Taiwan's success in Little League play that first attracted his attention to two prospects, EngJey Kao and Lai-Hua Lee.

Kao, an 19-year-old lefthanded pitcher, and Lee, an 18-year-old catcher, both signed contracts with the Reds after starring for their national team in a recent tournament.

"I did some checking with Mickey McConnell (retired director of training for Little League) and with some coaches who had conducted baseball clinics in the Far East," Howsam said. "I became convinced that there could well be some players in Taiwan with the capability to play professional ball."

Joe Bowen, director of scouting for the Reds, and Ed Howsam, area scouting supervisor, went to Taiwan last summer to conduct tryout camps and observe the players in a tournament there.

The national team of Taiwan was in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. last August for a world tournament for boys 16-18 and both boys participated.

The Taiwan team won this tournament, held for the first time, just as other Taiwanese teams had won Little League's Senior Division tournaments for three years in a row and the regular Little League World Series for four of the past five years.

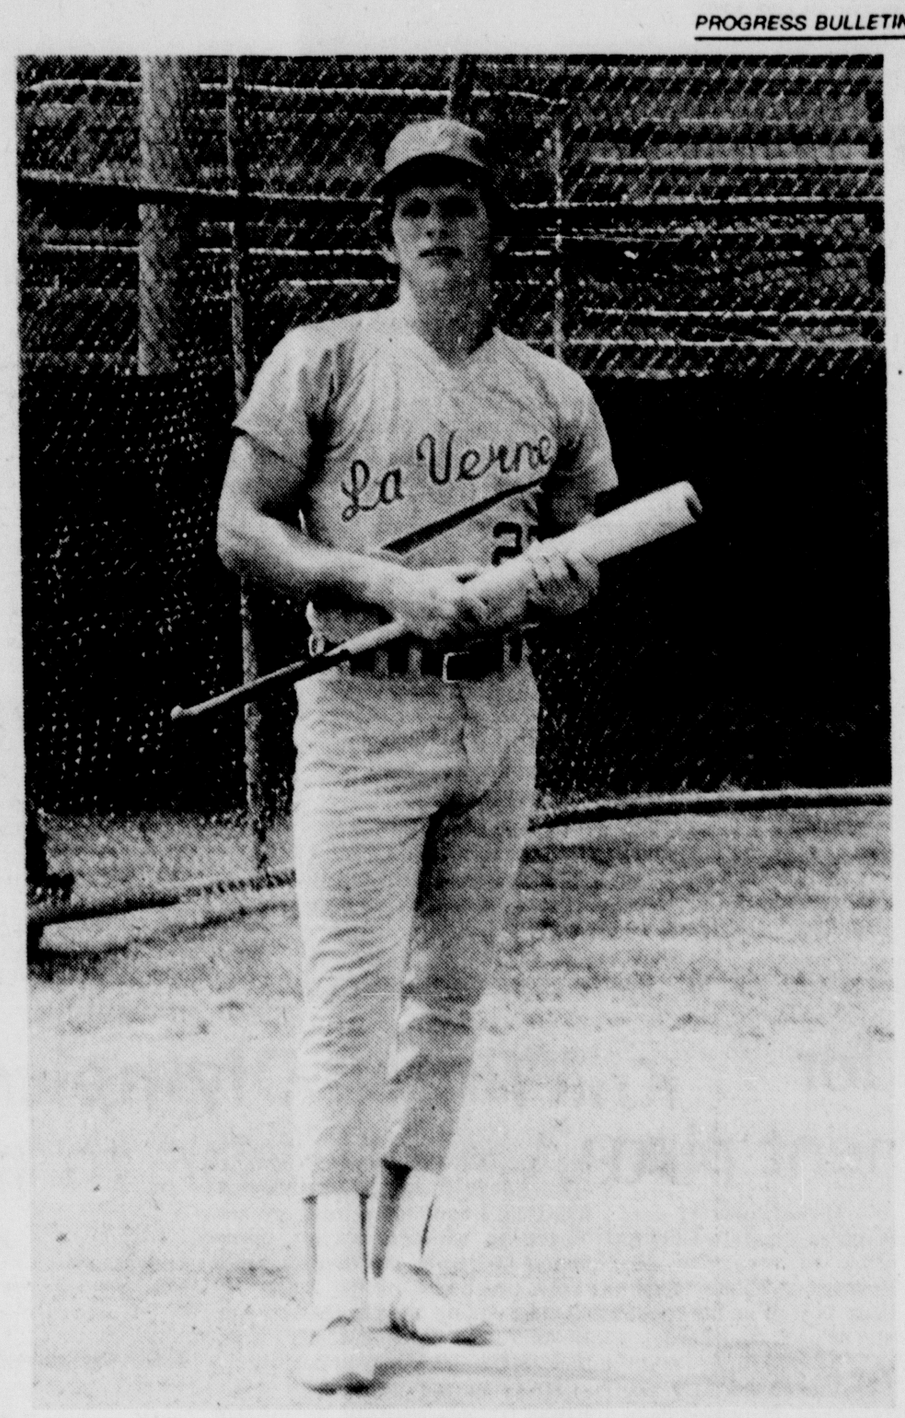

In the tournament at Fort Lauderdale, Kao pitched the full seven innings in the first two games, was the winning pitcher as the third game starter and pitched the final two innings in relief in the fourth and final game.

"It was at this time we decided to sign Kao and Lee to contracts," Howsam said. "Kao has a good fast ball, a good curve for a young boy and he's a good competitor. He also runs well and swings a pretty good bat. Lee, the catcher, is extremely quick behind the plate, has a good arm, and is outstanding on foul balls. He runs well and looks like he has bat potential with some power."

Kao and Lee will not be able to play professional baseball in the United States this summer because of military commitments in their country.

Wes Westrum is the third former major league catcher to manage the San Francisco Giants in the past 10 years. The others were Herman Franks and Charlie Fox.

Tom Morgan, who had a 67-47 American League pitching record, is the pitching coach for the San Diego Padres.

La Verne slugger Dan Graham

Leo slugger hitting .441

All the hardy third baseman did was spend the night in the hospital; get out at 10:30 a.m. the next day and played two games, slamming a home run and a double against Whittier.

Graham, who is from Winkleman, Ariz., was recommended to coach Ben Hines by his JC coach and had a chance to watch the Leos last year when they won five games at Arizona State and Grand Canyon College.

"La Verne has an outstanding record," Graham said, "and coach Hines has a reputation for producing winners. He called me up after my JC coach talked to him in San Francisco last year. Then I saw La Verne kick butt on Arizona State over there and that was pretty impressive."

Although he has always been a third baseman, Graham and Hines both feel that Graham's future in pro ball is as a catcher, a position he has played only a few times this year.

"I was playing summer baseball at Libral, Kansas last year," Graham said, "and our first string catcher got hurt. They took one look at me and said, 'put the gear on.'"

Graham is 6-2 and weighs 200 pounds. He looks like the protype catcher or third baseman.

"Naturally, I feel more comfortable at third," he admitted. "But all I need is two weeks behind the plate and I feel comfortable there. I really like catching. You can take charge and you're always in the game.

"It looks like I'm destined to be a catcher," he continued. "They look at me running and they say, 'the guy doesn't have outstanding speed,' and they're looking for lefthanded power hitters that can throw to be catchers. A catcher doesn't have to run well."

Although he has a year of eligibility left, Graham is not likely to to return to La Verne next year. The way he's going he is sure to be drafted in the free agent draft next week.

"If I get a good offer, I'll sign," he said, "or I could come back and play next year or I could simply wait until the secondary phase in January. I have something else to look forward to this summer so I'm not desperate."

What he has to "look forward to" is playing semipro ball for the Fairbanks, Alaska Gold Panners.

"They've won the National Semipro Championship the last three years," Graham said. "They have the most oustanding program in the country. They guarantee you jobs at about 10 bucks an hour, pay your transportation up and back and give you quite a bit of traveling."

According to Graham, the Gold Panners start off with an exhibition season in Hawaii, spend two months in Alaska, then come down to Pueblo, Colo. and Wichita, Kansas for the National Semipro Tournament.

The Leos have already played in Phoenix, Ariz., Las Vegas, Nev. and Portland, Ore. and are in St. Joseph, Mo. for the NAIA finals. So it shapes up as a year of travel for Graham.

Monday returns and Cubs rejoice

CHICAGO (AP) — The party may be over in the National League East for the Chicago Cubs, but don't count on it as long as Rick Monday is healthy.

"The biggest thing was getting Monday back," said Manager Jim Marshall this week as the Cubs snook off the effects of a horrendous 2-8 West Coast trip by winning two out of three from the Atlanta Braves.

Monday returned to the lineup Wednesday after missing six games because of knee injury, an absence which Marshall figures contributed to a five-game losing streak which capped the Cubs' sorry western junket.

"When you have a guy like Monday in the lineup, it takes the pressure off the key younger players like Bill Madlock, Manny Trillo, Andy Thornton and Pete LaCock," said Marshall. "He's the man our club looks upon as our leader."

Monday gave it the old college try although still a bit gimpy as the Cubs nipped the Braves 5-4. His club presently is bracing for a fall out of the top spot in the NL East. They have held the lead 45 days, since April 14.

The Cubs still hold a half-game advantage over the Pittsburgh Pirates as they mark time until Friday's start of a three-game series by the Dodgers who swept a three-game set from them last week at Los Angeles.

Against the Braves Wednesday, centerfielder Monday singled across one run and legged it home clear from first on Thornton's double in a four-run third inning.

"My knee has slowed me down a little," said Monday, who is batting .322 with 22 RBIs.

"It's a little tender and stiff and I feel like I'm running on one good leg and dragging the other along. But after the past few days, it feels terrific."

Although the Cubs, last place finishers in 1974, have shown distinct signs of slipping again, they have a big plus just by playing in the NL East where keeping over .500 is a proud distinction.

In their first round against NL West opposition, the Cubs were outscored 58-25, but only dropped two games off their first-place lead in the NL East.

"We've been going with a three-man rotation, with Steve Stone (5-0) ailing, but still are hanging in there because all our guys are playing their hardest," said Marshall.

"We got sharp relief pitching from Zamora against the Braves Wednesday and some great hustle by Monday and Jose Cardenal on the bases."

And Marshall added: "How many times do you see a runner score from third on a pop to the shortstop in short center like Cardenal did to start our four-run inning?"

Zamora, 3-0 with 5 saves aftr his win against Atlanta, has a simple formula for extending Cub success.

"All we have to do is keep winning two out of three at home," he said.

In the ominous series with the NL West-leading Dodgers, the Cubs will rely on Ray Burris, 6-3; Rick Reuschel, 3-5, and Bill Bonham. The Dodgers will respond in order with Don Sutton, 8-3; Andy Messersmith, 7-1, and Burt Hooton 3-4.

Prepster wants to help mom

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — High school basketball star Darryle "Dr. D" Dawkins said Thursday he decided to skip college and go directly to the pros because he wanted to buy his mother a nicer home.

The 6-foot-10 prep All-American was at Medgar Evans High School in Orlando when he received a phone call telling him he was the first-round draft choice of the Philadelphia 76ers.

"I wanted to put my mother in a nicer home and I saw this as a chance to do it earlier," Dawkins told the Orlando Sentinel-Star. "The decision was mostly mine. I felt I just have to do what I think is best for my family."

Dawkins, 18, is the first player ever to go directly from high school to the National Basketball Association. Another high school player, Bill Willoughby of Englewood, N.J., was the second-round draft choice of the Atlanta Hawks.

Jazz drafts Russian star

NEW YORK (AP) — The New Orleans Jazz chose Aleksander Belov, a 6-foot-7, 220pound forward from the Soviet Union on the final round of Thursday's National Basketball Association draft.

It was the first time in NBA or American Basketball Association history that a Russian had been drafted.

Simon Gourdine, the NBA's deputy commissioner, said the league would have to conduct an "investigation of the constitution" to determine whether Belov would be eligible to play in the NBA.

Dick Sisler, whose 10th inning home run won the 1950 National League pennant for the Philadelphia Phillies, coaches first base for the San Diego Padres.

Trout cost trio $933

The cost of a trout fishing trip to Inyo and Mono Counties took an unexpected upturn for a Los Angeles trio earlier this month when fish and game warden Warren Allsup checked their catch and found 183 fish.

After allowing each of them to keep a legal limit of 10 trout, Allsup took the remaining 153 fish as evidence and issued citations on May 7 to Minnie and Terou Mitooka and Frank Nakano for taking more trout than the law allows.

Northern Inyo Justice Court Judge Ted Gardiner set bail at $311 for each of the three. Declining to return to Inyo County to contest the charge, each of the three forfeited bail on May 14.

Warden Allsup worked several days on an undercover assignment to gather the information which led to discovery of the overlimits. He said some of the trout had been smoked, some had been frozen and the rest had been placed on ice for the long trip home.

The three anglers had taken the fish from Crowley Lake and Pleasant Valley Reservoir, Allsup reports.

The 153 trout seized as evidence were confiscated by the court and sent to the mess hall at the Ecological Corps station in Inyo County.

Banquet for Chinese

TOKYO (AP) — The visiting United States Track & Field gave a farewell banquet for Chinese sports officials in Peking Thursday evening, the official Hsinhua News Agency reported.

Attending the banquet were Chairman Cho Chenghung of the All-China Sports Federation (the Chinese Olympic Committee), President Ni Chih-Chin of the Chinese Track and Field Association as well as Chinese coaches and athletes, according to the broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

Joseph R. Scalzo, American Athletic Union President and leader of the U.S. team, and Ni spoke at the banquet, both expressing the wish that the friendship between the peoples and sportsmen of China and the U.S. would continue to develop.

Loyola lands cage recruits

LOS ANGELES — The list of high school basketball players heading for Loyola Marymount University has grown by two more names.

Head coach Dave Benaderet has announced that Bill Neu, a 6-foot-6 forward from West Torrance High School, and 6-foot-11 center Dave Rohde of Fountain Valley High School have signed national letters of intent to enroll at the University next Fall.

New and Rohde join previously announced Tom Branich (6-7), Greg Hunter (6-5½), and Bill Johnson (6-6) as newcomers to the Lion program.

Sports brief

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)— Winford Boynes, Oklahoma's prep basketball player of the year and one of the nation's most sought-after college prospects, says he definitely will sign a national letter of intent with San Francisco University.

Southland grunion run

The grunion season reopens in June with the first two-hour run on Southern California beaches scheduled to begin at 10:50 p.m. Wednesday, June 11, just two days after the new moon.

Runs will follow on June 12 at 11:38 p.m., June 14 at 12:33 a.m. and June 15 at 1:39 a.m. In each case the run lasts about two hours.

Department of Fish and Game marine biologist Vickie Wine says the best times for grunion hunting normally occur during the second hour and on the second and third nights of the four-day run.

Other significant four-day grunion runs this year will occur:

June 25	10:50 p.m. - 12:50 a.m.
June 26	11:27 p.m. - 1:27 a.m.
June 28	12:06 a.m. - 2:06 a.m.
June 29	12:48 a.m. - 2:48 a.m.
July 10	10:43 p.m. - 12:43 a.m.
July 11	11:32 p.m. - 1:32 a.m.
July 13	12:25 a.m. - 2:25 a.m.
July 14	1:30 a.m. - 3:30 a.m.
July 24	10:30 p.m. - 12:30 a.m.
July 25	11:05 p.m. - 1:05 a.m.
July 26	11:40 p.m. - 1:40 a.m.
July 28	12:17 a.m. - 2:17 a.m.

The beginning of each four-day grunion run occurs two days after a new or full moon during the highest tide of the day when grunion come ashore to spawn.

The female wiggles herself tail first into the sand and deposits her eggs which are fertilized by the sperm of a male that curls itself about the wiggling female. It's all over in the twinkling of a grunion eye — "15 to 30 seconds at most," says Wine.

It might appear unsportsmanlike to catch grunion when their minds are on sex, but the odds are with the slippery silvery fish since they can only be taken by hand, and as any grunion hunter will tell you that's not easy.

Wine says grunion can be expected on any of the principal beaches, but she cautions grunion hunters to keep quiet and not dash into the water. She also advises against the use of excess light.

"Grunion scare easily and won't come ashore," she says.

One of the best beaches for grunion, according to Wine, is Belmont Shore south of Long Beach where they have been punctual in appearing on schedule this year.

Major grunion runs begin in March and end in July, but April and May are closed in order to afford some protection.

A valid state fishing license is all that is required for taking grunion. There is no limit on the number that can be taken, but grunion should not be wasted.

Wine says grunion make an excellent breakfast for the morning after. Clean and scale them, then roll in a mixture of flour and yellow corn meal to which a little salt has been added. Deep fry until golden brown. Other grunion fanciers prefer them barbecued.

Public hearings set for new deer management plan

Dates for four public hearings at which a new deer management plan for California will be discussed were announced this week by the Department of Fish and Game.

The plan is intended to reverse a 10-year decline in deer numbers in California, improve habitat and maintain a suitable balance between animals and their habitat.

The hearings will provide an opportunity for Department of Fish and Game wildlife biologists to explain the plan to interested members of the public as well as to give interested persons an opportunity to express their views on the plan.

"The new plan has been in preparation for more than a year and has been reviewed extensively by department personnel in all branches and on all levels," E. C. Fullerton, department director said.

"The public hearings will give us a chance to receive suggestions from the public which will be carefully considered in our final review and preparation of the plan in its final form," Fullerton explained.

Hearings have been scheduled for the following locations and times:

— Monday, June 9, San Diego, 7 p.m. in Room B-109 of the State Building, 1350 Front St.

— Tuesday, June 10, Santa Barbara, 7 p.m. in the County Schools Auditorium, 4400 Cathedral Oaks Road. (From Highway 101 take the San Marcos Pass Road north to Cathedral Oaks Road, turn left and proceed about one mile to the auditorium.)

— Wednesday, June 11, Los Angeles, 7 p.m. in Room 1138, New State Building, 107 South Broadway.

— Monday, June 16, Mammoth, Mono County, 7 p.m. in the U.S. Forest Service Visitor Information Center about three miles west of Highway 395 on the road to Mammoth.

Copies of the new deer plan can be obtained from the Department of Fish and Game, 350 Golden Shore, Long Beach, 90802.

Hearings will be announced shortly for other parts of the state.

The chief cause of the reduction in deer numbers in the past decade, according to the DFG, has been poor fawn survival which is attributed largely to reduction in the amount of deer habitat as well as to decreases in the quality of remaining deer areas.

The new plan places emphasis on:

— Management of deer herds as separate units in order to recognize differences in habitat conditions as well as the condition of each deer herd;

— Increased law enforcement by wardens to reduce the number of illegally killed deer;

— Provisions for increased recreational use of deer, including both hunting and nonhunting programs; and —Seeking increased cooperation of public land-management agencies as well as private landowners in improving deer habitat.

The plan also points out that loss or reduction in the quality of deer habitat is detrimental to other wildlife species. Practices that will benefit deer also will be beneficial to many other kinds of California wildlife.

Winter Olympics right on target

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials of Austria's 1976 Winter Olympic Games say they are on schedule and Montreal's Summer Games are not "because we are putting on a 'simple' Olympics and they are not."

But organizers of the Innsbruck Games, taking no chances on the weather, will use man-made ice on its bobsled and toboggan course.

Bertl Neumann, press chief of the Winter Games, is part of an Austrian delegation which will present a status report on the Winter Games Friday to the International Ski Federation in San Francisco. Neumann said the report "will not contain anything surprising," and in fact will note how well prepared Innsbruck is.

"We will have no difficulty in putting on the Games," he said. "Construction is ahead of schedule. We have expanded some of our existing facilities and we have built some new ones to conform to new rules."

One innovation is a combined toboggan-bobsled course, "the first one of its kind," said Egon Winkler of the Austrian trade delegation who interprets for Neumann's broken English. "The course will be used for both events and will have artificial snow for the Games."

Outdoors

Dr. Karl Heinz Klee, the secretary general of the Winter Olympics Organizing Committee, clarified the word "artificial." He said in order to insure the uniformity of conditions, a giant refrigeration unit will make the proper amount of ice for the course, which can then "be used four months out of the year without any worry about the weather."

In addition, "we constructed a new jumping hill that will permit ski jumps of 104 meters."

Neumann said the delegation met with Summer Games organizers last week in Montreal and "we asked them why they didn't do what we did, put on a 'simple' games—use the existing facilities. They told us perhaps they should have, but now that things are already started the present situation has to go on."

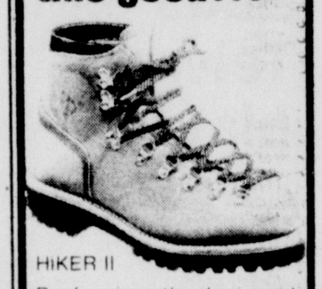

Klee said Innsbruck is six months ahead of schedule. "By the end of the year all the sites and facilities will be completed and we will be working on the small details." The Games are scheduled Feb. 4-15.

He praised a group of energetic, experienced people for the rapid progress of the Austrian Games, especially Dr. Emmy Schwabe, the director of the Games, and Dr. Alois Lugger, the mayor of Innsbruck.

Denver was to host the 1976 Winter Games, but its citizens voted against them on Nov. 8, 1972. Innsbruck, which had hosted the 1964 Winter Games, volunteered to take them over on short notice.

Unlike Denver, "the Games have the full support of the citizens of Innsbruck," Klee said. "Innsbruck has about 25,000 residents and about 6,000 of them are accomplished skiers."

IT'S MICHELIN MONTH.

Now's the time to change up to the tire that changed the tire industry. Michelin. The original steel-belted radial.

Michelin dealers are featuring real tire values right now.

On Michelin 'X' Whitewalls for American cars. On Michelin 'ZX' for imports. And on Michelin 'XAS' for imported, high performance sports cars.

Ever since Michelin invented the steel-belted radial back in 1948, we've been giving drivers what they want in a tire.

Long life. Michelin 'X' and 'ZX' tires for American and imported cars are warranted for 40,000 miles. (But many drivers say they get more. Thousands of miles more from their Michelins.)

Fuel savings. Fuel tests prove you can expect measurable savings on your gasoline dollar.

Assured traction. Our steel-braced tread really grips the road. Which means you'll get great handling, superb cornering, sure braking and a smooth, quiet ride.

Steel-belted puncture protection... for safety and security against road hazards.

Need more reasons? See your dealer.

40,000 Mile Warranty: *Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire and Michelin ZX Radial Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life, normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

The steel-belted radial leader

Ice skating is one of the most enjoyable forms of sport and entertainment.

People on primitive ice skates were probably gliding over the frozen rivers and lakes of northern Europe more than 1,000 years ago.

The first ice skates were made from animal bones and bound to the feet with leather straps. Ice skates made of wood were used in Holland during the 14th century.

Most ice skates today are made of metal. These skates are permanently attached to special skating shoes.

The sport is no longer limited to frozen rivers and lakes in the winter months. Indoor rinks make it possible to enjoy ice skating the year around.

Ice is slippery because it melts under the pressure of your weight and becomes wet. It then offers less friction.

So when you ice skate, you are really skating on a slippery film of water that forms between the ice and the blades of the skates.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (C/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Garden pests and their control is the topic Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. of Pomona Valley Organic Garden Club. Biologist Kenneth Smith of La Verne College is guest speaker. Site of the monthly meeting is Palomares Junior High School at Arrow Highway and Orange Grove Avenue.

For giant tomatoes, beans...

Manure, static electricity

The right manure and a dash of static electricity is the secret Chino gardener J. Roy Dunazant says swells his tomatoes, cabbages and sweet peas into the monolithic category.

Dunazant lives at 3844 Riverside Drive amid Chino's horse ranches and dairy feed lots. He said manure becomes a headache to horse ranchers and dairy owners who take it as a favor if gardeners haul it away free for the taking.

Dunazant says horse manure is the best all around fertilizer for the home gardener. Cow manure, he says, contains too much salt since cattle owners feed so much salt to their stock.

Rabbit manure actually is the best of all but is in a limited supply. Chicken guano is good, but pretty "hot" and lasts only a year, he said.

Each fall, Dunazant hauls in his next spring's supply of fertilizer and lets it mellow under leaves all winter, then rototillers it into his garden in the spring before planting. He liquifies some of the manure for onions which he said need such treatment.

For tomatoes and beans, Dunazant hooks up an elaborate system of iron pipes and wire to not only hold up the crops but to collect static electricity from the air and transfer it to the ground. He said the system works but exactly how he doesn't know. "Something about ozone working into the ground," he said.

Dunazant's harvests seem to bear out his theories. His sweet peas this year topped 11 feet, 6-inches.

J. ROY DUNAZANT AND PRIZE SWEET PEAS

DUNAZANT'S CABBAGE

RETIRED rancher Dunazant constructs steel trellis for tomatoes. He says such a metal framework conducts static electricity to the ground dramatically increasing size of tomatoes.

Kookie garden volume

Scores of new books are sprouting on the garden market as authors harvest profits from recession-plagued Americans seeking solutions to the high cost of living through back yard gardens.

One of the most provocative from the new crop is titled: "The Biodynamic/French Intensive Method, or How to grow more vegetables than you ever thought possible on less land than you can imagine."

If the author's claims are as prolific as the title, we should be up to our hips in tomatoes and green beans come harvest time.

The new green thumb tome runs the gamut from a scholarly treatise to hippy flower child in its approach to vegetable gardening. Repleat with Latin genus names to tips on how to encourage gopher snakes to take up residence in your cucumber patch, the author transforms studious gardening into a readable presentation.

Philosophy behind the gardening calls for companion planting, raised beds, living mulch and creation of mini-greenhouse with the plants themselves. The author claims such gardens need much less fertilizer, half the water and produce many times the normal yield. Talking to seeds and plants, helps, too, he says.

The book is available for $4 plus tax through Ecology Action of the Midpeninsula, 2225 El Camino Real, Palo Alto, Calif. 94306.

MAICO's Newest Hearing Aid: It's What it Doesn't do That Helps YOU!

The patented* directional microphone system in MAICO's Mark 140 DirectionEar PLUS eyeglass hearing aid doesn't amplify competing sounds from the sides and rear nearly as much as those sounds from the front. The result? Thanks to a specially tuned directivity pattern used for the first time in a hearing aid microphone, you may hear more clearly with less strain or confusion in the presence of competing sounds compared to other models without this pattern. HHH says he's getting pressure to run again

WAVERLY, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says he's getting "an ever-increasing amount of pressure" to seek the Democratic presidential nomination. But he says his supporters will have to "wait and see" if he decides to run.

Humphrey, who celebrated his 64th birthday Tuesday, said he's made a decision not to seek the nomination again. "The only question is whether I'll reassess it or not," he said.

"All kinds of people around the country talk to me about running," said the former vice president. "They said run! As a matter of fact, there's an awful lot of this kind of talk and it's kind of difficult to resist, to be honest about it."

A Humphrey adviser has suggested that the senator might enter a late primary as an indication of availability if no other Democrat has emerged by then as a clear frontrunner.

But Humphrey said that is "very unlikely."

Seniors to have parties

More than 110,000 seniors from high schools in California, Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico and Hawaii will take part in all-night graduation parties at Disneyland the next few weeks.

The students from 700 schools will have the amusement park to themselves from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m., and will have unlimited use of all the attractions except the shooting gallery.

Star entertainers to perform are the Hues Corporation tonight and next Friday; B. J. Thomas tonight; the Pointer Sisters, the Jimmy Castor Bunch, and Arthur, Hurley and Gottlieb next Friday and June 6, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 19; the Four Tops June 10, 11, 12, 13 and 19; and the comedy duo of Skiles and Henderson on all seven nights.

On these Grad Nites, one chaperone for every 20 students is admitted free.

Since the first Grad Nite in 1961, nearly one million seniors have attended.

The dates for local high schools: Pomona Catholic next Friday; Ontario Christian, Bonita and San Dimas June 10; Alta Loma, Glendora, Los Altos, Pomona, La Puente, Nogales, John A. Rowland, Ganesha, Garey, Park Avenue, Fontana, Montclair, Chaffey, Ontario, Upland, Walnut and Charter Oak, June 11; Chino, Bassett, Glen Wilson and Edgewood, June 12, and Temple Christian June 13.

B.J. THOMAS

CAPTAIN AND CREW — The recording duo of the Captain and Tennille will perform at the Good Time Theater at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park at 8 and 10 o'clock tonight, at 6, 8 and 10 p.m. Saturday, and at 3, 5 and 7 p.m. Sunday. The singers [husband and wife] have two hit records, "The Way I Want To Touch You" and "Love Will Keep Us Together."

Gunners to have contest

A fast-draw contest will be featured Saturday and Sunday at the Western Americana Gun & Indian Show at the Great Western Exhibit Center in Commerce. The show opens today.

The contest is being conducted by Tom Wentz and Ted Blocker of the Shooters Club. It will employ an electronic digital clock to check the time a contestant takes to draw his pistol, aim it and pull the trigger. The entrants dress in the style of Western frontier days and most of them use single-action Colts — actually collector's items — restored to mint condition.

Cal Poly to hold community festival

Cal Poly will present the Community Arts Festival at various places on the campus from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

South Pacific dancers, square and folk dancing, an arts and crafts sale, roving musicians and ethnic food will be featured.

Admission is free to every event but the South Pacific Thealani dance show.

The Thealani show presents live music by the Islanders and six exotic dancers performing Tahitian, Hula, Maori, Somoan, Phillippine and female fire dances. Showtimes are 2 and 4 p.m. in the Women's Gym. Tickets are $1.

Billy Burke, a member of the Aman Folk Dance Troups, will teach folk dancing to the public free of charge from 3 to 5 p.m. There will be continuous folk dance instruction by various Cal Poly instructors during the day on the lawn outside the Physical Education Building.

Ray Cox, Bill Penney and Pete Newton — all local professional square dance callers — will call square dances for the public and local square dance clubs.

Arts and crafts by community artisans will be on sale. Mimes, Shakespearean actors and strolling minstrels will also perform.

The festival is sponsored by the recreation and leisure administration students of the Cal Poly Physical Education Department, with participation by students from Cal Poly and area high schools.

Comics to play at park

Al Lohman and Roger Barkley, popular Los Angeles radio comics, will appear in the Showcase Theater of Magic Mountain, Valencia, at 1, 2:30 and 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and the following two weekends.

Lohman and Barkley's wit and fascinating cast of supporting characters (all portrayed by Al Lohman) occupy the highly-rated early morning spot on KFI. Recently, the pair recorded their first album for MGM entitled "Lohman and Barkley's Greatest Hits."

Lohman and Barkley's stage show is included in Magic Mountain's one main gate admission price

HERE NOW . . . 1975 OPEL ALL NEW FUEL INJECTION CAR!

NOW . . . an already fine road car is even better!

A surface glance at these new, special-edition Opels won't tell you much about what's so special about them. But pop the bonnet on one, and the news is evident.
The conventional air cleaner is gone - replaced by a cavernous cold air box. It filters cooler, outside air and feeds it into the injection system. And the carburetor? Don't look for it - replaced by a highly-sophisticated Bosch electronic control unit (actually a miniature, on-board computer) accurately meters out a precise amount of fuel which is delivered directly to the intake valves. First and foremost Opel is a road car. Test drive yours today and feel the difference.
